68,000 eggs packed per hour

EPHRATA - Pennfield Farms, one of Pennsylvania's largest and most modern egg processing companies, is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year. Strolling through the firm's bright, modern headquarters building on Schoenck Road near here, it is hard to imagine the company as anything but the fast, efficient egg processing giant it is today.

Pennfield Farms' almost unbelievable volume of 156 million eggs a year is only slightly easier to comprehend after one has seen their two fully automated egg processing machines literally "sucking up" eggs at the rate of 68,400 per hour. Incredibly, though, all the high volume and modern efficiency of Pennfield Farms today can be traced back to the almost whimsical fact that around the turn of the century an Ephrata farmer named Levi Martin Sheaffer bought a few pigeons to raise as pets! (Pennfield Farms was formerly the L. M. Sheaffer Company.)

Sheaffer's "pets" multiplied so fast that he couldn't take care of them all. Soon, he began processing his excess squabs and selling them to well known New York City restaurants like Sherry's and Delmonico's.

As the demand for squabs

New Holland to host world auction contest

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Academy Award nominee Werner Herzog wants 20,000,000 Germans to see this year's World Livestock Auctioneer Championship. That's why he's coming from Munich, Germany to New Holland, to film the contest. Herzog, a 1976 nominee for his film "Every Man for Himself and God Against All" will film a 45-minute documentary for showing later this fall on German television, where he expects an audience of 20,000,000. He also hopes to make the film available to U.S. television audiences.

Herzog said his film of the June 19 championship will be one of a series of documentaries on life in the United States. Other subjects will feature politics and industry, as well as agriculture.

He will film all of the 4 to 5 hour contest and accompanying festivities at the New Holland Sales Stables, Inc., owned by Abe Diefenbach and Norman Kolb, hosts of the 13th annual event. A German band will provide entertainment and a complimentary Pennsylvania Dutch luncheon will be served to all spectators.

The film producer became interested in the world championship event last year while filming at a Colorado livestock auction market.

A record number of entrants from the U.S. and Canada is expected, according to Gerald D. Nevins, championship coordinator. The event is sponsored by Competitive Livestock Marketing Association, and conducted by a subsidiary company, Livestock Market Digest, to focus attention on the professional role of

Tobacco plant situation is tight

By JOANNE SPAHR
LANCASTER, Pa. - The tobacco beds were lush with dark green, thick stemmed plants that had good root systems. Things were progressing ahead of schedule and it looked as though there was going to be an overabundance of the crop. Then, last Tuesday, hail hit and the whole story changed. In a span of a few hours, whole beds were wiped out and farmers had to scramble to find plants.

The worst area hit was a belt running east from Elizabethtown to Mt. Joy and Landisville through to Bird-In-Hand, Intercourse, and Spring Garden. According to Associate County Agent Arnold G. Lueck, agronomist with the county extension office, this accounts for less than 10 percent of the total acreage in the county. But, this 10 percent is of vital importance to many farmers because two of the largest commercial growers in the area are located in the vicinity of Intercourse where the devastation was the worst. For these men and the farmers who depend on them for plants, the supply will be tight until the seedbeds grow back.

One of the growers estimated that his crop would take only 10 days to return. He also estimated that his seed bed production

After weeks of stalling and relative obscurity, corn and other crops in the area have shifted into high gear in their growth patterns. Fueled by plenty of sunshine, adequate moisture, and hot weather, the plants are turning the countryside into the typical summer-time look.

But not all is well in the area after a devastating storm ripped through portions of southeastern Pennsylvania last week. Following is a summary of some of the conditions found in the area.

NEVER FORGET THE INDIVIDUAL PULLET OR HEN

"He can't see the forest for the trees". This old saying has been used to describe the problem of concentrating too much on individual items and neglecting the bigger picture. However, in poultry operations, just the opposite can happen. Flock averages are evaluated but often the performance, behavior and individual needs of each pullet or hen are forgotten. Yet, the individual bird is important in understanding the nutritional needs of the flock, in establishing standards of performance as well as developing certain management practices.

BIO LAYENA INTAKE GUIDES¹

BIO LAYENA²

BIO LAYENA ²	FEED INTAKE GUIDE ³ LBS./100 HENS/DAY
Bio Layena 100	Over 25 0
Bio Layena 107	23.4 to 25 0
Bio Layena 114	21 7 to 23 3
Bio Layena 121	20 0 to 21 6
Bio Layena 128	Under 20 0 lbs

¹The % shift from the graph line indicates normal variations for an age due to temperature

²The numbers after the Bio-Layena rations indicate the Purina Bio-rating. Bio-Layena 100 is the base product. Each subsequent ration contains 7% extra amino acid, vitamin and mineral fortification over the previous one. For example, Bio-Layena 114 contains 7% more fortification than Bio-Layena 107 and 14% more than Bio-Layena 100.

³Values are guides only since feed use varies due to wastage, strains, etc. Use local judgment as when to change rations. Generally intakes for pre-peak layers are not a good guide to ration choice since non-layers [immature pullets] distort average values. However, after 27 to 28 weeks they can be used to match the correct Bio-Layena ration to the hen's needs.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

It's a great feeling to know that you are the master of your farmlands . . . that when you treat your soil right, it will treat you right. Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range. By raising the pH from a level below 6.0 to 6.5 or higher, you can expect to harvest as much as 5 more bushels of corn per acre, with similar increases for all other forage and cash crops.

LIFE on the farm

We started the day the same as usual — get up at 5 a.m., bring the cows into the barn, milk and feed them, care for the calves, and clean up facilities and equipment after milking.

But on a hot muggy morning it's just not quite the same as other days, especially when a person has spent the previous day or two tossing hay bales. After a while the arms and fingers get sore and the entire body becomes sluggish.

During this time of year, we often had hay wagons to unload which had been brought in the previous evening. Time for breakfast was short and sometimes one or two of us would start unloading bales while someone else finished the barn work.

By ten o'clock the sun would be generating plenty of heat and the hay mow got so warm that sweat would roll down a person's face, back, chest and arms even if he only stood there. The strings on the bales tore at fingers which were still sensitive from handling as many as a thousand the day before.

As with other jobs on the farm when there are more than one person involved, tossing and stacking the hay bales — some of which weigh over 100 pounds — is something of a competitive event. You're competing with the clock, the weather, and your fellow workers.

Everyone involved might want to rest now and then — but you can't. Time is too critical when there's hay out in the field. What's more, once the pace is broken by a "time-out," it's often harder to regain momentum than it would have been to maintain it. So the work goes on, bale after bale, and hour after hour, whether a person likes it or not.

Opportunities for a "breather" came only when we rode the wagon back out to the field to get another load, and when we returned with a full load. Depending on which direction we were going, we might stop at the house, barn or cool spring underneath a big shade tree to get a quick drink. Our stomachs become bottomless pits in this kind of weather when physical activity was vigorous and continuous.

Hay making and hay hauling was interrupted by the afternoon milking for several hours, and then we'd go out again to pick up one, two, or three more loads.

Thoroughly soaked with sweat and covered with hay dust and chaff, the best and most appreciated solution to that problem was a relaxing, soothing dip in the pond.

We'd float around in there while the moon came up over the horizon and frogs and crickets serenaded us from all sides.

Thinking positively

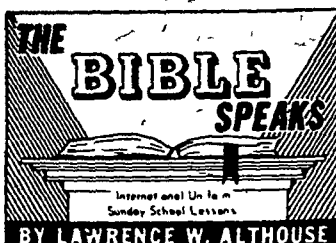

Some folks are lucky enough to have jobs which double as hobbies. Among them are a number of farmers and people who work with farmers in related businesses.

Last week's story on the outlook of dairymen in the area reflected this mood. Sure, farmers complain from time to time just like everyone else, but almost all of them enjoy what they're doing. Very few would be willing to trade with someone else.

Taking everything into consideration, that's how it should be too. Take away the enthusiasm, interest and pride from any job and you lower productivity. It's the positive approach to things which has made American agriculture productive, not the pessimism which is displayed by a few. And it's the positive thinkers who have excelled in their careers, while chronic complainers lack that same degree of success.

Although other reasons enter into the picture, the job-hobby combination makes a big difference in the outcome of things. Work and all the challenges involved become a source of enjoyment and satisfaction if genuine interest and enthusiasm are present right from the start.

ON SERVING TABLES

Lesson for June 13, 1976

Background Scripture: Acts 6:1-6; 1 Timothy 3:1-13.
Devotional Reading: Ephesians 4:1-16.

I have read the sixth chapter of Acts many times, but it was only in preparation for this column that I realized there was something there that had eluded me in the past.

The story seems simple enough: because the Greek-speaking Jewish Christians felt their widows were not getting their fair share in the daily distribution of food and because the apostles felt that their duties of preaching and teaching would not permit them to adequately oversee this matter, seven men were appointed and consecrated to be responsible for this function. In some churches today the deacon is still regarded as the person specially set apart to minister to people's material needs, while the pastor or elder devotes himself, as did the apostles, to their spiritual needs.

Murmuring at the tables

Yet, reading between the lines, there seems to be more to this story. I sense considerable conflict in this incident. Luke says that the "Hellenists murmured against the Hebrews" the (Greek-speaking against Aramaic-speaking). The point of the dispute is clear: the Hellenists feel there is discrimination against them by the Hebrews.

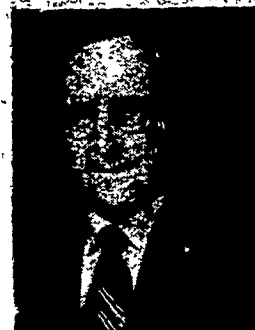

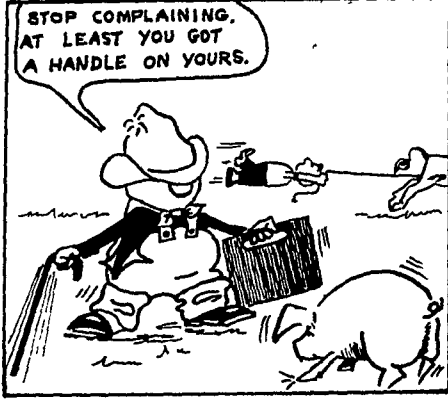

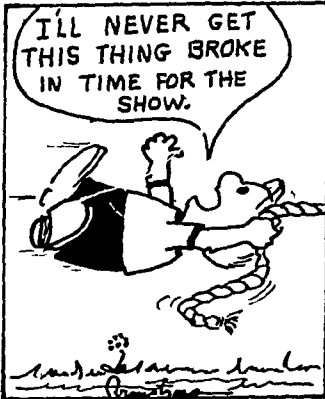

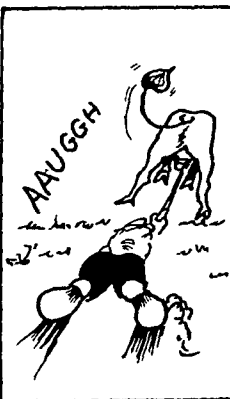

This is a serious charge and the first indication that the early church had the same kinds of problems which we still have today. Whether or not the Aramaic-speaking Christians were actually prejudiced against their Greek-speaking counterparts, the Hellenists believed that they were the victims of discrimination. Thus was the unity of the church threatened.

The congregation was pleased

In their response to this complaint, the apostles sound as if they are more than a little defensive. Instead of commenting upon the unequal distribution, they protest that their religious duties will not permit them to exercise sufficient oversight of the food distribution. Then, in an attempt to find a compromise, they suggest that seven Greek-speaking Christians be selected to administer the food tables.

TO KNOCK THE LEAF HOPPERS...

The potato leaf hopper has been named the most severe insect on alfalfa at this time. Local growers have suffered in past years from stunted, yellowing second and third cuttings of alfalfa. This can be prevented by the application of Cygon, Malathion, or Methoxychlor on the new growth when three to six inches high. Do not wait until you see yellowing before making the application. One application per cutting should control the leaf hoppers. Later cuttings are the most valuable and contain the most feed nutrients; every effort should be made to get maximum yields on all alfalfa fields.

TO BEWARE OF DUTCH ELM TREATMENT...

The recent publicity regarding the control of Dutch Elm Disease is noted; we feel the new material called Lignasan BLP has a place in the disease control program when properly used by experienced applicators. We would like to caution tree owners that this material is not without potential hazards. The label states that it is harmful if absorbed through the skin, may irritate the eyes, nose, throat, and skin; also, keep out of lakes, ponds, and streams. We urge tree owners to hire commercial applicators to make the treatment; also, it works best on healthy trees that are not infected or lightly infected. Don't expect this material to eradicate the disease from a tree that is heavily infected and partly dead. Several local tree surgeons and landscape concerns are equipped to administer the material.

TO PROVIDE LIVESTOCK COMFORT...

Hot, humid weather is expected anytime and livestock suffer the same as humans. We urge producers to make a special effort to provide shade, fresh water,

The tactic seems to satisfy the Hellenists for "what they said pleased the whole multitude..." (6:5).

Yet, another source of tension remains: The apostles indicate that their spiritual duties are incompatible with serving tables. But hadn't Jesus himself said: "For which is the greater, one who sits at table, or one who serves?... But I am among you as one who serves." (Luke 22:27). And in John 13, Jesus girds himself with a towel and washes their feet.

Isn't it ironic too that Luke tells us that Stephen, a man appointed to serve tables because the apostles didn't have enough time, is remembered as a disciple "full of grace and power... who did great wonders and signs among the people"?

Stephen's official task may have been serving tables, but he is obviously no less an apostle because of it.

and good air movement. All of these will add to the comfort of the animals. Exhaust fans can be used to move the air out of a building. Open doors and windows will help get cross ventilation. Animals outside should have access to shade at all times. Swine producers may want to install

Goats are becoming more popular

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was submitted by the Maryland Dairy Goat Association, Inc.

What is the oldest dairy breed in existence? What dairy animal can give 33 pounds of milk per pound of body weight over a 305 day lactation? The answer to both these questions is not some recently discovered breed of "super cow", but the goat.

Goats were the first animal to be domesticated and were important to primitive man long before the much larger and harder to handle and care for cow was anything more than game. Living in the United States with its cow-dairy oriented system, we fail to realize that taking the world as a whole, more people drink goat milk than cows' milk.

In recent years the dairy goat has begun to come into its own in the U.S. Registration of animals in the American Dairy Goat Assn. has risen phenomenally in the past three years. Among the reasons for this rise in goat population is the "Back to the Land" movement and the worsening economic situation which makes many people strive to be a little independent. In their search for independence goats fit admirably. Let's take a look at this remarkable animal and see why she is so special.

The five breeds of dairy goats popular in the U.S. differ in external characteristics but are basically similar. A mature doe from a good producing line, properly fed, should milk two to four quarts per day. She has to be milked twice a day, just like a cow. She should have a 305-day lactation, just like a cow.

But, she is usually bred for the first time at about 10 months of age, or 80 pounds, and delivers an average of two kids after a five-month gestation period. In comparison, pound for pound of body weight, a high producing dairy goat can out-milk a high producing cow. A very high producing dairy goat of 150 pounds can milk 5,000 pounds in 305 days, for over 33 pounds of milk per lb. body weight.

For the person who wishes to provide for himself, a dairy goat can mean a big start toward independence. For a modest initial investment he gets a friend (goats can be more responsive pets than dogs) who gives him nourishment (milk, cheese, butter) and provides kids which can be sold or raised for meat and hides. Add a garden and a few chickens and forget about the grocery store!

Does are clean and easy to handle and care for. They need adequate housing and fencing, but so do cows, and anyone who has ever chased Bossy over the neighbors' gardens will appreciate a dairy animal that can be caught and held with one hand!

Another advantage is apparent at breeding time. Just open the car door and you have a friend who will "talk" to you and look at the sights all the way to her prospective husband's. Many goats can be car-brokers and lots of breeders offer stud service, so there is no need for the owner of a few goats to keep a buck. Mature bucks, especially during the breeding season, are fragrant and this is what often gives goats a bad reputation.

Goats are very particular eaters and the hay they have disdained to eat can be gathered up for steers or horses. Goats milk is slightly richer than cows, but should not taste "goaty". With properly fed animals, clean equipment and prompt cooling, goats' milk is hard to distinguish from cows, and easier to digest.

Many associations have been formed to promote dairy goats and help those new to the field. For further information about these remarkable animals contact the Maryland Dairy Goat Assn., P.O. Box 035, Westminster, Md. 21157.

NEW NON-MEDICATED CATTLE-HORSE COUGH TREATMENT

GLENCOE, M. N. - A reliable and fast acting non-medicated cough treatment that attacks both the cough and the direct cause in cattle and horses called Cough Halt has been introduced by Gem Laboratories.

Cough Halt effectively quiets the cough reflex while promoting the complete discharge of congestion and irritants to clear upper respiratory passages. A combination of organic iodide and ammonium chloride speeds and enhances the expectorant action of the product.

Flavored for maximum acceptability, Cough Halt eliminates prolonged and damaging animal coughing. Unchecked, heavy coughing can cause severe exhaustion, lowered resistance to disease, retarded or delayed recovery, aggravated pain, ruptures, hemorrhaging, increased susceptibility, overburdened heart and high blood pressure.

Cough Halt is a viable, inexpensive preventative measure in eliminating the effects of intense coughing and its attendant complications.

Easy to administer in water or feed, Cough Halt is packaged in 1 lb. bags.

Gem Laboratories is a key manufacturer of animal health products and a major developer of commercial animal technology.

Most farmers oppose OSHA regulations

CHICAGO, Ill. - A recent survey, conducted by International Harvester's FARM FORUM Magazine, indicates that almost two-thirds of farmers polled are against OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) regulations to help protect hired farm help from accidents. And more than half (56 percent) believe that OSHA and other governmental safety regulations have absolutely no effect on making farming operations safer.

These and other conclusions are based on a random sampling of 829 U.S. farmers who voiced their opinions on a variety of questions concerning farm safety.

In response to the question, "How do you feel about government enacting OSHA regulations to help protect hired farm help from accidents," the farmers responded as follows:

I'm for OSHA regulations 100 percent. - 1 percent answered yes.

OSHA is necessary because farmers haven't corrected safety hazards themselves. - four percent agreed.

Although I can't say I'm for OSHA regulations, I think the good points outweigh the bad. - thirty percent agreed.

I'm against OSHA interfering in farm operations. - sixty-five percent said yes.

Asked if they felt OSHA and other governmental safety regulations really made their farming operation safer, only four percent answered definitely yes. More than a third (37 percent) said somewhat, and 56 percent said absolutely no effect.

To date, OSHA regulations apply only to hired persons working on a farm, and do not apply to a farmer or members of his immediate family. The farmers were asked if OSHA or OSHA-type regulations should be extended to include the farmer and members of his family as well. Their responses were as follows:

Definitely yes - two percent.

Yes, if that's what it takes to get persons to be more safety conscious - nine percent.

No. A farmer's safety should be his own responsibility, and no law is going to make him more safe. - sixty-two percent.

Under no circumstances does the government have any business telling a farmer whether to practice safety. - twenty-six percent.

Yet more than three-fourths of the responding farmers had had some sort of farm or farm-related accident. Most (58 percent) had received only minor cuts, bruises or sprains; 15 percent had had a serious accident; and 4 percent had had an accident causing permanent injury.

The responding farmers were divided on how dangerous an occupation they feel farming is, answering as follows:

Extremely dangerous occupation - four percent. More dangerous than the majority of other jobs - 35 percent.

No more or less dangerous than any other jobs - 52 percent.

Less dangerous than other occupations - eight percent.

The farmers were asked which was the one most hazardous job or situation in their farming operations. Responses included: driving or operating tractors or self-propelled equipment on roads and highways (2 percent); operating, adjusting or repairing combines, corn pickers or other farm machinery (20 percent); handling herbicides, insecticides or fertilizer (10 percent); and handling livestock (12 percent).

Despite the dangers, 33 percent of the respondents indicated that they do not practice as good a farm safety program as they should, while 65 percent said that they do. And only nine percent are personally involved in an organized safety education program in their communities.

July milk price set

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - A Class I price of $11.08 per hundredweight for July 1976 was announced today by Order No. 4 Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine. This price is down 14 cents from June, but is $1.28 above July one year ago. Middle Atlantic order prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat, f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, Pa. and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, D.C. or Baltimore, Md. There is also a 6-cent direct delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, Pa.

The Order No. 4 July Class I price and the May Class II price are based on the May Minnesota - Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $8.30 per hundredweight for milk testing 3.5 percent.

The USDA reports that the wholesale Grade A butter price at Chicago was 89.88 cents in May, and the nonfat dry milk price for the month was 62.71 cents, f.o.b. plants in Chicago.

Ashes made corn grow

Post-colonial Delaware farmers were ever alert to the "science" of making crops grow, and by 1788, they had already discovered that they "could no longer depend chiefly on the freshness and richness of the soil."

Fertilization of the fields was a common practice but not so complicated as soil nutrition studies have since made it. According to James Tilton, Delaware physician-agriculturist in the post-colonial period, the best fertilizer was "... ashes made by culinary uses, discovered by some few experiments, to be a most advantageous manure. Two tablespoons sprinkled on a hill of Indian corn, after it has been sprouted above the earth, will be sufficient."

Crops meeting cancelled

LANDISVILLE — Hail damage to spring oats, barley, and wheat has caused Penn State officials to cancel the twilight meeting on small grains research, originally set for the evening of June 17 at the Southeastern Field Research Laboratory here.

The tour of small grains plots was designed to interest seed growers, seed dealers, and farmers. Announcing the cancellation were Dr. Harold G. Marshall, Penn State agronomist, and John O. Yocum, superintendent of the field research laboratory.

They indicated spring oats plots were destroyed by a severe hail storm that swept through the research farm on June 1. Barley was 80 per cent destroyed. Some plots of wheat were 45 to 50 per cent destroyed, with grain knocked out of the heads or with the heads broken off.

for 1977, will be discussed - including the training of teams for the coming year.

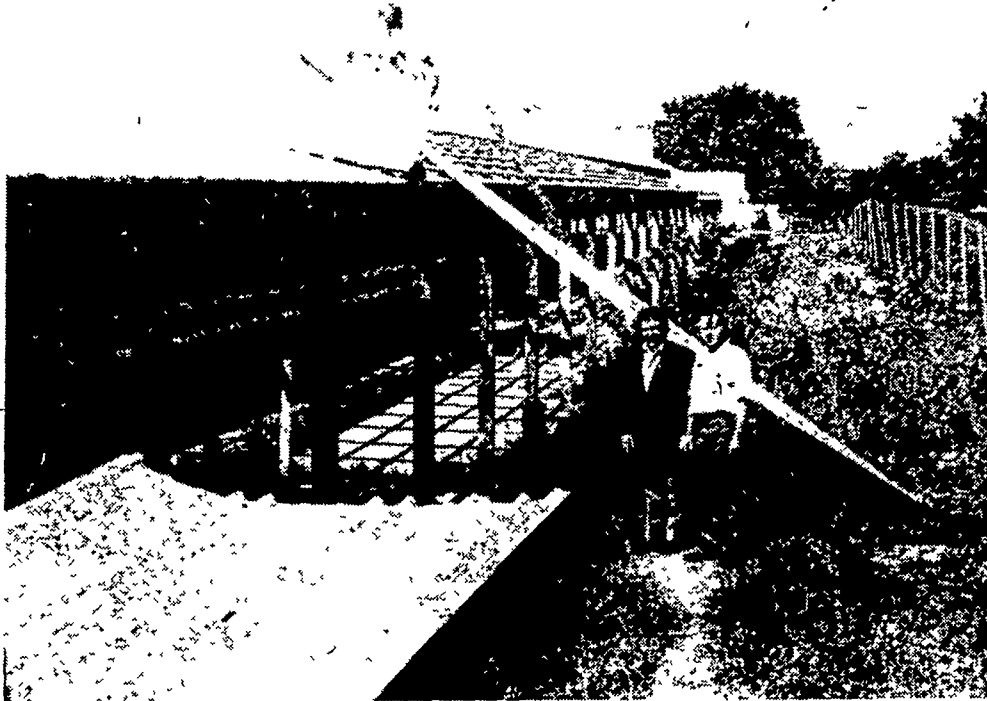

Delegates and contestants will be welcomed to the campus at a general session in the University Auditorium the evening of June 15. The welcoming comments will be given by Dr. Gene M. Love, new head of the Department of Agricultural Education at Penn State, and James C.

Fink, state advisor of the FFA from the Pennsylvania Department of Education. Guests will be introduced by Gregory E. Davis, state FFA president from Middlebury Center.

Addressing a general session the night of June 16 will be the national FFA president, Bobby Tucker of Mineola, Texas. The State FFA Band and State FFA Chorus will be on program for the general sessions all three days.

Business meetings of State Association of FFA be held daily. Awards contest winners will be presented the morning of June 17, during a general session scheduled for 9:30. Awards will include trips to regional and national contests.

Lindy Vicari (left), president of the Agricultural and Horticultural Assoc. of Berks County, and A. Wayne Readinger, (right) vice president of the Assoc., and agricultural director of the Reading Fair stands beside the new sheep and swine exhibition hall which will be completed in time for this year's fair. It measures 20 x 200 ft. and is designed to hold up to 300 animals.

Exhibition hall nearly complete

READING - A new 20 by 200 ft. exhibition hall for sheep and swine nears completion for this year's Reading Fair scheduled to open on June 21. Approved this past winter by the Reading Fair Board, the new hall is designed to hold up to 300 animals, and is being built adjacent to the cattle hall. The addition brings the total barn area to 26,000 sq. ft., giving Reading the largest fairground cattle barn in the state.

Agriculture Director A. Wayne Readinger calls the new structure "an asset to the agricultural aspect of this year's Fair. The sheep and swine were formerly housed in a tent. This new building will make them more visible to the public." He is confident that a large number of sheep and swine will be entered in this year's competition, "very possibly enough to fill the new building."

All sheep and swine entries must be housed in their stalls by noon on Sunday, June 20, with the judging taking place for the swine at 11 a.m. on Monday, June 21. The sheep will be judged at 6 p.m. on the same day.

BARLEY

Much of the barley in the area, which would have been ready for combining within the next ten days, was chopped by hail and rain. Those who lost practically all their acreage were seen cutting it down and removing it from the fields. One such individual was Richard Metzler. The Manheim area farmer baled his barley for straw, claiming that most of the grain had been shattered from the heads and was down too low for combining anyway. As of this past Thursday he had short season corn planted in those old barley fields.

Metzler also reported losing approximately half of his wheat crop. He noted that the wheat loss was not as severe as with barley since its maturity was not nearly as advanced.

"I could hardly believe it until I saw it," commented Metzler, adding that until the storm came he had what would have been considered an average crop. Reports from other areas - both within and outside of the storm's path - also indicated that the 1976 barley crop would have been or is average. Metzler and several others, however, noted that the straw may be just a bit shorter than usual. In the Quarryville area some farmers pointed out that barley straw was significantly shorter than in other years.

John Yocum, of Penn State's Field Research Laboratory at Landisville reported that barley fields there were 80 to 85 percent lost. The wheat loss was estimated at "at least" 50 percent. A grain meeting, which was originally scheduled for the upcoming week was cancelled due to crops having been shredded.

Yocum advises farmers who sustained substantial barley losses to get it off the field if they haven't done so already and begin planting short-season corn. "If they get it in by mid-June they should be in good shape," he commented.

A state-wide report issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture on June 9 said the state's barley crop was 82 percent headed and 12 percent

Young and battered corn plants are struggling in fields which were recently ravaged by high winds, hard rains, floods, and hail. On Tuesday, June 1, this portion of a field was covered by rampaging water which was more than a foot high in some places. This was the scene exactly a week later as the soil had become brittle and cracked. Many plants were missing in this part of the field, but the surviving ones looked as though they'd make it as long as Mother Nature would cooperate once in a while with a shower.

turning yellow. Almost all wheat fields have headed, and some are turning color.

SOYBEANS

Soybeans look good - although much of it is only now beginning to show up above the surface, and in northern areas plantings are still continuing.

Yocum told Lancaster Farming this week that the soybean fields at the research farm were just coming through when mud and rain washed them over and out. A Manheim area grower who had a similar experience was Charles Hummer. His plants had come through the ground nicely, but were snapped off by high winds, hail, rain and flooding. Hummer planted the first of his soybeans on the 10th of May, admitting that some of the cool weeks we've had did not do them much good. "They were a little slow anyway," he remarked, "when the rain finished it off it was the deciding factor to replant." He completed that task Thursday afternoon. Of his total of 55 acres of soybeans, he re-planted about half. Both he and Yocum stressed the importance of having soybeans in as soon as possible now since potential yields of the crop drop substantially after June 1.

POTATOES

The potato crop in regions which were not hit by the storm looks healthy enough. Considering the force of the storm which hit some potato fields, the destruction here is comparatively minor. Yocum said the crop at his farm was "really chopped up" but that it's doubtful it would have a significant impact on yields. He predicted there would be a delay in the potato crop's development. Hummer, who grows 115 acres of potatoes, agreed with Yocum in that his crop weathered the storm satisfactorily but was not certain as to how yields would be affected. "I've never experienced anything like it," he said. He began

With the largest, most modern egg processing operation in Pennsylvania, Pennfield Farms can handle 156 million eggs per year. One of the firm's machines is capable of handling 40,000 eggs per planting his crop on March 15 and kept at it for approximately four weeks.

Ten to 20 acres of Hummer's crop were "really hit hard," but even they are recovering. "Most of the stems broke, but they're sprouting out and are bushy looking," Hummer commented. He predicted that the crop would come through okay as long as growing conditions from now on are favorable. "Hot and dry weather would be too much stress on the plants now - they need moisture," he pointed out.

STRAWBERRIES

Strawberry grower Melvin Eby of Manheim said he would have had an average crop if the hail storm hadn't come through. Now he has an extremely short crop. He estimates he lost half of his berries. Yocum reported that 70 percent of the berries in the area might have been lost.

According to Lititz area farmer, David Landis, the strawberry crop was a little short this year anyway. He was thankful for not having suffered any hail damage, but reported a sizable loss of berries just the same. He blamed it on odd weather patterns which pushed blossoms out early. Alternating warm and cold weather had the plants confused, and wet spells caused rot. Recent hot weather caused some berries to ripen too fast.

Mrs. Eby described the damage at the Eby farm as having been "quite a loss... we don't want anything like that again." Eby noted that even prior to the storm damage, he didn't think the berries were sizing up just right. He thought the timing of the storm was very bad as far as yields are concerned. In another week he would have had much of his crop picked. Associated with strawberries for 30 years, he considered the recent storm to be the most severe one he's experienced. Hurricane Agnes in 1972 came after strawberries were picked, he explained.

"We won't let a year like this discourage us," the strawberry grower said. "We wouldn't want every year to be like this, but it could be worse..."

Egg firm packs increased, Sheaffer began buying birds from his neighboring farmers. They convinced him to buy and process their chickens, too. Egg collection and distribution soon followed as a natural sideline.

Eggs did not remain a sideline for long, however. By 1924, egg processing had become such a large part of the business that all poultry operations were discontinued. The business moved into a large, new building, and all of the horse drawn wagons were replaced with far more efficient new egg collection vehicles: gasoline powered trucks!

That management philosophy of constantly incorporating the most modern and efficient technology and facilities to remain in the forefront of the egg processing industry has been evident throughout the entire combined history of the L. M. Sheaffer Company and Pennfield Farms. The inevitable result has been constant growth, consistent high quality, and outstanding service for 75 years.

Pennfield Farms was one of the first egg packing plants in the United States to install automatic egg sizing equipment. This soon led to fully automatic washing, sanitizing, candling, sizing and grading operations. Then Pennfield became the first

Kirby and Meli top riding events

WOODSTOWN, N.J. - With more than the sense of balance of a trapeze artist, both Kaye Kirby and Jack Meli kept first and second place to themselves in the riding events at the Cowtown Rodeo Saturday night.

Kaye Kirby of Woodstown, N.J. took first place in the Bare Back Bronc and Bull Riding with a mark of 71 in both events. He also tied with Wyatt Crotta of Bethany, Conn. for first place in the Saddle Bronc Riding both marking a 65. Kaye was top money winner of the evening earning $562.27, for all three events.

Only nine out of twenty-four ropers managed to mark time in the event, with Carl Marino of Higganum, Conn. winning first for $343.00 in 12.8 seconds.

Lou Christman of Staton Island, N.Y. threw his steer in eight seconds flat for $307.72.

The purse for the girl's barrel race contained over $500 and again it was split between six winners. The race was almost a repeat of last week's muddy performance, except in the dry arena the time was faster. Lorriane Alexander of Newton, N.J. came in first for the second week in a row. Lorraine's time was 17.94 seconds, with Dale Bibbo again pushing a very close second place with 18.11 seconds. Lorraine won $154.89.

A moderate group of fans watched a total of 123 contestants compete for more than 3 1/2 hours for the $3,636.00 in prize money.

sprinkling or fogging devices to wet the floor and the animals when temperatures get into the nineties. Livestock on pasture including only a few large trees should be brought into the barn ahead of severe thunder storms. In many cases lightning has struck the large single tree in a pasture and killed many valuable animals. This can be prevented by removing the animals before the storm strikes.

TO BECOME FAMILIAR WITH PESTICIDES...

I'm aware of the material named Tordon recently approved for killing Multiflora Rose and other woody plants. This will soon be available at pesticide distributors. I'd like to warn farmers about using this material near farm crops, legumes, and desirable trees. It is deadly on most crops except grasses. The manure from animals grazing on the grass following the treatment of an area will contain the residue of Tordon and will kill most farm, flower, and vegetable plants. In this part of the state with intense cropping we urge spray operators to become familiar with the material before using it. It could do far more harm than good.

Before the hailstorm last week, these plants might have gone unsold for a few days. Now, the waiting lists are long and plants can be sold immediately.

had been cut by 30 to 40 percent and that possibly one quarter of his 56 beds had been completely ruined.

"It's hard for me to say how bad the damage was," he explained, "because I never experienced anything like this before."

In his case, the totally ruined beds had been pulled during the afternoon and only the young, less sturdy plants remained. When the storm came, the rain flattened them and the hail, the size of cherries, cut them off at the heart.

The full beds fared better. Although the leaves were cut, the hearts remained untouched.

"If my regular customers have patience, there'll be plants enough," he said. "But, I wouldn't blame them if they have to go elsewhere."

That's the problem.

Regular customers will be taken care of, but farmers who don't buy on a regular basis, but need extra plants, and those whose beds were destroyed, are in trouble. Plants are scarce.

"The way I understand, you just can't buy them - everybody has them promised out," says Mervin Myers, Manheim R4. He farms with his son, Marlin, Mt. Joy R2, who had 85 percent of his seedbeds at Mt. Joy ruined.

"Those beds were almost wiped out. Marlin had expected to get about six acres off of them but now he'll be lucky to get two," the farmer explained.

The Myers' also had 3½ acres planted out in the field. That had to be taken out and the field replanted.

Luckily for the Myers', Marlin had beds elsewhere, in an area where the damage was not as bad. So, they were spared the problem of searching for plants.

One farmer, Forney Longenecker, had a hard time finding plants. He found that the farmers didn't even want to promise them out. It turned out to be almost a

A comparison of a hail cut and a healthy plant points up the destruction caused by last week's storm. The ruined plants were first flattened by the rain, then pelted to death by the hailstones.

"first come, first serve" year.

Jesse Balmer, Millway Rd., Lititz, was in the opposite situation. He had gotten his plants out early and had some to spare. So, he placed an ad in the paper on what turned out to be the day of the hailstorm, and has been deluged with calls ever since.

"We get ten calls a day, at least," said the dairy farmer. "In fact, I got five calls in ¾ of an hour the other night when I was milking."

Originally, he had anticipated four or five calls at the maximum because plants were plentiful and more farmers had started seedbeds.

With the supply so low, and demand so high, the prices are expected to rise. Yet, this may not happen. Many farmers refuse to raise prices because of the misfortune.

"I'm not going to raise my prices," said the grower at Intercoast, "because we all want to help each other."

This is the sentiments of many other farmers, but what the price does come to through the season remains to be seen.

Price index gains

HARRISBURG - The May 15, 1976 Index of Prices Received by Pennsylvania farmers was one per cent above the previous month and 12 per cent above a year earlier, according to the Crop Reporting Service.

Lower prices for sheep, lambs and chickens were more than offset by moderate increases in most other commodities. The purchasing power of prices received was one percentage point above April, and four percentage points above a year ago.

Nationally, the Index of Prices Received increased nearly two per cent from April and was five per cent above a year ago. Contributing most to the increase since mid-April were higher prices for corn, cotton and soybeans. Lower prices for cattle and milk were partially offsetting.

auctioneers in merchandising livestock, Nevins said.

Last year, 46 auctioneers from 15 states and Canada competed in Little Rock, Ark. for the world title. A Reserve World Champion and Runner Up World Champion will also be selected.

Champions, reserve champions and runner up champions from three geographic regions will also be picked. All winners will be announced that evening at an awards dinner at the Hershey, Pa. Motor Lodge and Convention Center. Winners will receive trophies and merchandise prizes.

Nevins said Ron Ball, the 1975 World Champion from Brush, Colo., heads an advisory committee comprised of the previous 12 champions, which will assist in conducting this year's competition.

The auctioneers will merchandise livestock consigned to the Showcase Cattle Sale, arranged especially for the contest.

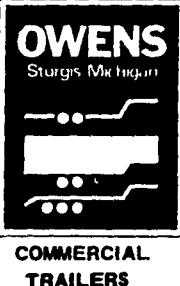

The event will begin at noon and is free to the public. Closed circuit television will be used throughout the sale facility to allow the expected overflow crowd to view the championship, Nevins said.

Additional information and entry forms may be obtained from Livestock Market Digest, 4900 Oak, Kansas City, Mo. 64112, or the New Holland Sales Stables.

The 1976 Pennsylvania Poultry Conference sponsored by the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation will feature commodity workshop sessions on the bird of tomorrow. The day long conference is scheduled for Thursday, Jun 17, 1976, at the Host Corral in Lancaster.

In three separate commodity workshop sessions, industry men will hear about the broiler, turkey, and layer of tomorrow. The broiler presentation will be given by Dr. James Smith, director of Research and Development, Hubbard Farms, Inc., of Walpole, New Hampshire. Turkeys of tomorrow will be covered by Elmo Long, hatchery manager, Goldsboro Milling Company, Goldsboro, North Carolina. Layers will be discussed by Dr. James Arthur, director of Research, Hy-Line International, Dallas Center, Iowa.

Other topics during the day include an update on the energy crisis; recent developments in shell formation and leg weakness; a look at the shape of things

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Under rules and regulations established recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for implementing the Egg Research and Promotion Order, an assessment of five cents will be levied on each for Northeastern poultrymen and the price-demand outlook for broilers, turkeys, eggs and feed. USDA's number two man, Under Secretary John Knebel will address the group following lunch.

The conference concludes with a gala reception and dinner in the evening. Highlight of this Annual Banquet is announcement of the Poultry Industryman of the Year and Allied Industryman of the Year for 1976.

30-dozen eggs marketed by producers with more than 3,000 laying hens. Eggs from hatchery operations are exempt.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) says that the rules, which become effective Aug. 1, designate shell egg packers and egg breakers as collecting handlers who will remit producer assessments. Handlers will remit directly to the Egg Board which administers the order through a cooperating state agency under contract with the board.

Any producer who grades or breaks eggs he produces must remit the assessment on them. Handlers who do no more than buy and sell nest run eggs must also remit assessments to the Egg Board on eggs handled.

Under the rules, egg breakers, packers, handlers and producers who break or grade a portion of their eggs must register as collecting handlers with the Egg Board prior to Aug. 1. Registered collecting handlers will receive an identification number which must appear on all required reports and official communications with the Egg Board.

The Egg Research and Promotion Order was authorized under provisions of the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act of 1974. The program is designed to expand and improve markets for eggs, egg products, spent fowl (nonproductive laying hens), and products of spent fowl. Producers approved the order during a national referendum in November 1975. The approved rules and regulations were recommended to USDA by the Egg Board whose 18 members - all egg producers - were appointed by the secretary of agriculture from nominations submitted by producer organizations.

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

EXPLANATION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW MUELLER "FRE-HEATER™" FOR THE DAIRY FARM

Bulk milk coolers on modern dairy farms remove heat from the milk promptly after it is produced. To accomplish this requires refrigeration machines and they are generally of the air-cooled type. Air-cooled condensing units literally "throw away" this valuable heat.

On these same farms, large amounts of hot water are needed for "prepping" the cows, washing the milk cooler, the pipeline milker, other equipment, and the milking parlor itself. It is also advantageous to heat the cows' drinking water in winter.

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water.

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to the storage tank.

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water.

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing.

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system... and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser.

Three things which frequently reduce the efficiency are

1. Poor air circulation and recirculation
2. Fan motor failures
3. Dirty or clogged condenser fins

Air-cooled condensing units are generally installed out of doors in order to assure adequate air supply to the condenser. This exposes the compressor to extreme ambient temperatures. Starting problems and compressor failures have resulted and air-cooled condenser units are always noisy.

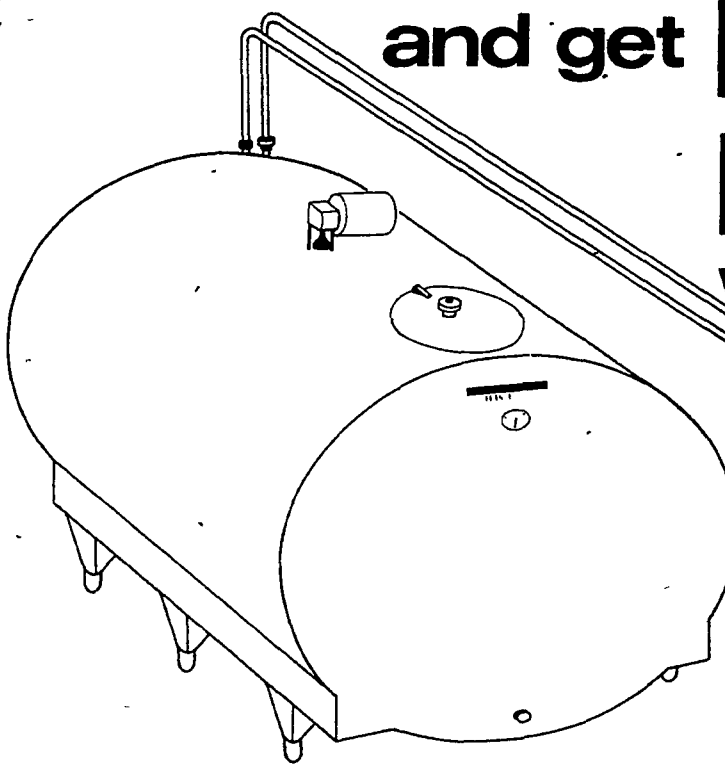

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

- There is no air-cooled condenser.
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors.
- There are no fans to generate noise.
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life.
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus... the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

New, modern egg handling and processing facilities are housed in this building located at Pennfield Farms, Ephrata. The latest of equipment processing company to install a totally "in-line" system ... bringing eggs directly from the hens by conveyor to the automatic processing equipment.

The original L. M. Sheaffer Company remained in the Sheaffer family until 1968, when it became a part of the Pennfield Corporation ... the multi-faceted, new agribusiness firm headquartered in Rohrerstown, Pa.

Under Pennfield's leadership, Pennfield Farms has continued to grow and prosper. An ambitious building and expansion project has just been completed within the last year. Pennfield Farms new 31,900 foot processing plant and office building is one of the most highly efficient and modern egg processing facilities in the country.

The complex includes a spacious processing and packing area, a carefully refrigerated and humidified storage warehouse, office quarters, employee facilities, and a company store.

The processing area includes the revolutionary new egg processing machine, the Page PA - 120. The new system alone processes 120 cases of eggs an hour (43,200 individual eggs). Pennfield Farms original PA - 70 system (70 cases an hour) is now used exclusively in processing eggs from the company's 270,000 bird "in-line" farm. These eggs are carried by conveyor to the processing equipment as soon as soon as they are produced ... creating the freshest commercially processed eggs available anywhere.

To keep both processing machines busy, Pennfield Farms now owns approximately 700,000 laying hens. So, the company has literally grown from a few squabs to 700,000 chickens in just 75 years.

Tax Sources Vary
Individual and corporate income taxes provide the major sources of federal income. State governments rely on a combination of general and selective sales and gross receipts for more than half of their tax revenue while local governments depend primarily on property tax revenues.

NZN™ gets into plants faster than any other zinc.

It's not often that a new product comes along that's significantly more effective than its competitors but is still very economically priced. But we have one. A new zinc material called NZN.

NZN is actually a combination of 5.5% zinc and 22% nitrogen. It's this special patented combination that makes NZN significantly outperform all other zinc materials on the market today. Because NZN gets into plants faster and in greater amounts than even the chelated zincs. Yet NZN costs less to buy than chelated materials.

Try NZN in foliar sprays, in irrigation water, in regular soil applications of liquid fertilizers. Frankly, you'll be amazed at how much more effective NZN is at getting through to plants and overcoming zinc deficiencies.

Stop in and see us and learn more about the most economical zinc you can buy. NZN.

Gary Willier, former sales manager for ABS's 047 District, congratulates Maurice Stump for surpassing the 90,000 ampule mark in semen sales. Stump has been with ABS since 1960.

Dan Rush, ABS sales manager for Region 047, presents a service award to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herr of Holtwood. R1. Herr has been an ABS service technician since 1958 and has sold more than 80,000 first-services.

ABS technicians honored

BIRD-IN-HAND — Two Technicians for American Breeders Service, Paul Herr and Maurice Stump, were honored this week at a district awards banquet for having served the company for more than 15 years.

Paul Herr, who makes his home on a Jersey farm just west of The Buck along Route 372, joined ABS in 1958 and has sold 81,390 ampules of semen for first services. Maurice Stump is approaching the 100,000 ampule mark after 16 years of service to ABS.

Aside from the service award presentations, the dinner meeting was highlighted by comments and reflections from several ABS officials. Among them was former District Sales Manager, Gary Willier, who last year moved on to a regional office in Virginia. The former Penn State dairy science standout reflected on company policies and stressed the importance of people as they relate to ABS programs and services.

Morris Ewing, representing the dairy cattle breeding department at ABS, spoke to the group after dinner, as well as at a day-long meeting the following day. Held at the Bird-in-Hand Restaurant, here, the meetings were attended by approximately 45 ABS representatives from District 047 (Southeastern Pa.)

Dan Rush, District 047 sales manager, led the proceedings which were designed to recognize achievements, service, and goals.

Those attending the program were reminded of the importance of good record-keeping. Ewing noted repeatedly that complete and accurate identification of animals where ever possible would result in a greater number of records being included in sire summaries and hence a rise in individual bull repeatability factors.

It was also pointed out the dairy industry has accepted

ABS's recently innovated Genetic Trait Summary system quite well and that it may well become a forerunner of an industry-wide genetic tool.

Rivercrest 4-H Club meets

MONTCLARE - The Rivercrest 4-H Club will hold a meeting in Mont Clare on Tuesday, June 15, 7:30 p.m. at the Rivercrest Center on Route No. 29. The club is open to all boys and girls ages 8-19 interested in being part of an active youth group.

Members will have a chance to learn project skills, go on trips or tours, attend summer camp if eligible, exhibit at the annual 4-H Fair in August, elect their own officers and run short business meetings. Those who enjoy working with animals such as horses, sheep, rabbits, etc., can help take care of the petting farm animals. The farm will be open to the public as well as being part of the resident school program. Gardening plots can also be made available to youngsters unable to grow flowers or vegetables at home.

There will also be a special project for anyone interested in learning about horses and their care. The farm already has a pony and plans to get one or two more horses. Members can learn grooming, stable management, showmanship and much more. The center is also looking for donations of a goat, two sheep and rabbits and hutches. All animals should be healthy and quiet around children.

Any area boys and girls wishing to join this group should plan to attend the next meeting of the group in the Camp Building. Parents should also attend. The Center is located on Route 29 in Mont Clare.

For more information on the club contact Laura Fultz at 935-1581. Mr. & Mrs. Fultz are organizational leaders with Maryann Ribick of Phoenixville serving as Junior Leader. Any teens or adults interested in helping with the program are invited to call Mrs. Fultz for details. The group is also looking for someone to help teach woodworking and vegetable gardening.

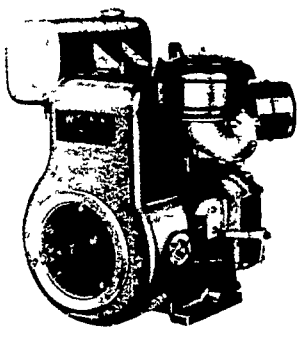

Other 4-H opportunities include a summer camp, community service projects, trips, tours, speakers, exhibiting at the annual 4-H Fair in August and being part of county, state, national and international programs.

25 years of service celebrated

By DIETER KRIEG
STRAUSSTOWN — More than 20 employees, friends and their spouses attended a surprise dinner party for Donald Anthony last Monday night, honoring him for 25 years of service to the business his father founded in 1917, and bears his name.

The 59-year old, internationally known agricultural enterprise - The George M. Anthony and Sons Poultry Farm - now has seven employees who have devoted 25 or more years of service to the company. The firm, which is headquartered here adjacent to the majestic southern slope of Blue Mountain, is famous for its Anthony White Leghorns. The family has been breeding them since 1917.

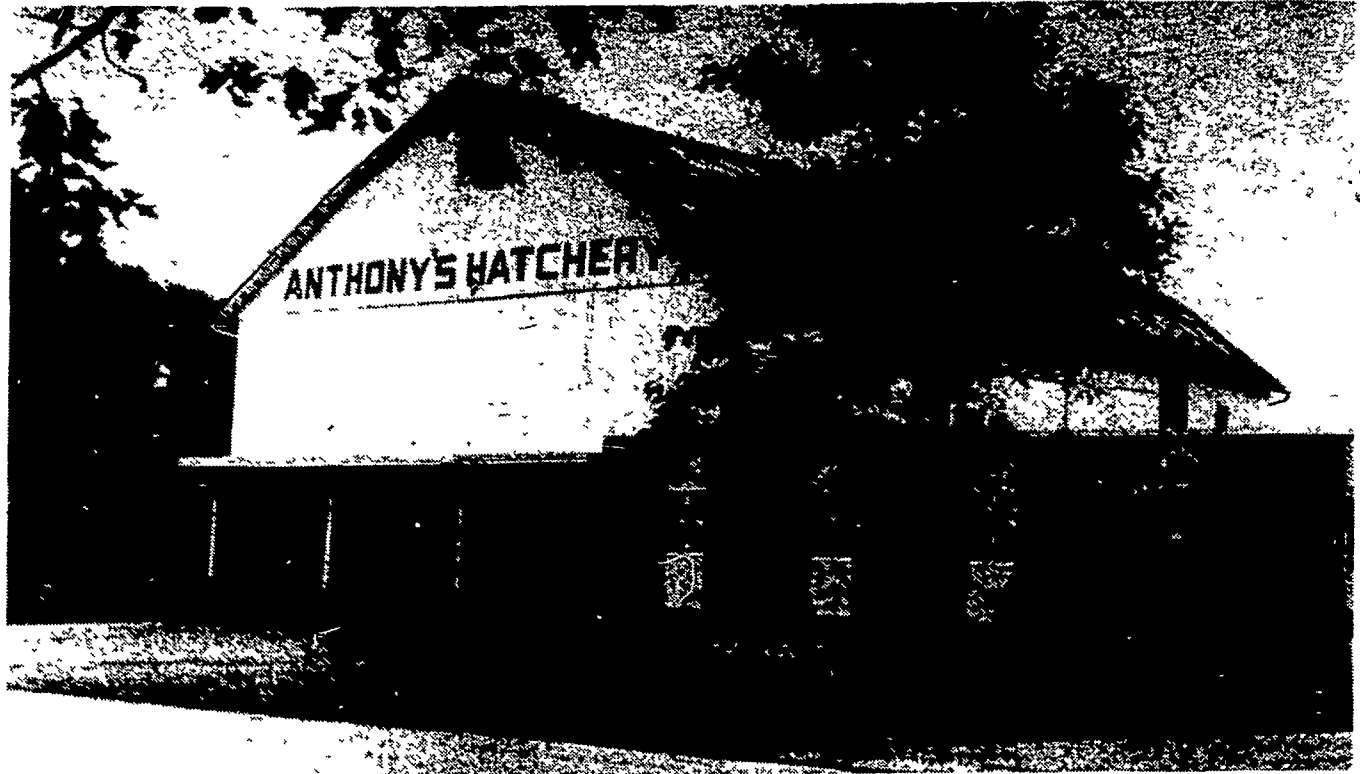

Although the Anthony poultry farm and a related feed business have grown in size to warrant the hiring of more than 20 employees, it is run as a family operation. By the Anthonys' own admission their poultry breeding facilities are far from being the largest in the country.

The fact that a number of employees have stayed with the farm for so many years is a source of pride to the management and one reason for their success. The close relationship between employer and employees was evident at the dinner as all shared in the fun of eating and telling amusing stories about their experiences at the poultry farm.

Surrounded by extraordinary landscaping which gives the area a more park or garden-like appearance rather than that of a commercial establishment, the hatchery and feed businesses draw attention because of the immaculate and carefully manicured grounds. J. Warren Shearer, field representative for the hatchery, hinted that all the planning for the beautification of the grounds was done by the Anthony's themselves and that it is a reflection of the family's dedication to run a business with more than quantity and profits in mind.

Donald Anthony, honoree last Monday evening, is the general manager of the poultry farm and feed mill. His brother, Barry, is in charge of the breeding program, which ranks as one of the most intensive in the country. Their incubators have a capacity of 240,000 eggs.

The business's founder, George Anthony, who was present at the dinner to give his son and daughter-in-law a pewter coffee server, had originally intended to go into the dairy business in 1917. Lacking the money to buy a few cows at a sale, he invested his limited funds in 125 baby chicks. A year later he purchased a 240-egg incubator, which started the hatching business. The first large expansion took place in

Officials attend symposium

UNIVERSITY PARK - County government officials took part in a County Commissioners Symposium on The Pennsylvania State University's main campus, June 2-3.

Those attending were County Commissioners Raymond Herr and Mrs. Jean Mowery.

Max Smith, county extension director, points out that the symposium was designed to show how Penn State College of Agriculture Extension and Research programs relate to and benefit the local educational Extension effort.

Sponsor of the two-day conference was the 68-member-organizations of the College's Agricultural Advisory Council, in cooperation with County Extension Associations and the College of Agriculture.

The 211 participants toured the Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center, Dairy Research Center, and sewage effluent research work.

They visited with faculty members on such topics as waste water reclamation; energy conservation alternatives; results of spray irrigation on sewage effluent; potential value and problems of disposing municipal sewage sludge on agricultural land; and research related to forage and corn varieties, weed control, and dwarf fruit trees.

Also on the agenda was a series of presentations on outstanding county and statewide Extension programs by staff members in Venango, Lancaster, Delaware, Montgomery, Indiana, Westmoreland, Fulton, and Huntingdon counties as well as campus faculty members.

The presentations centered on the main areas of Extension's educational efforts: family living, youth, farm production, and community resource development.

Other activities included a land-use issues seminar, a county commissioners panel discussion, and a Penn State football outlook conducted by Sever J. Toretti, assistant director of athletics.

Two Norlebcos FFA'ers attended Nat'l. Bicentennial Conference

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Two students from the Northern Lebanon FFA Chapter at Northern Lebanon High School attended a National FFA Bicentennial Conference here recently. The affair was held at the National FFA Center near the nation's capital the week of June 7.

Making the trip to Washington were Arthur Swinehart and Larry Gross. Swinehart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swinehart, Fredericksburg, and Gross is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gross, Myerstown.

The FFA Conference program is designed to improve leadership skills, develop an understanding of the national heritage, and prepare FFA members for more effective leadership roles in their chapter and community. The Conference is also a forum for the exchange of FFA Chapter activity ideas among members from across the nation.

Besides the training sessions, the 1976 program includes visits to Mt. Vernon Plantation, the National Archives, Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, and several other historic monuments and memorials in and around the Capital.

A highlight of the Conference was a Thursday morning visit to the office of Congressman Ed Eshleman of 16th district. Later participants attended a Capitol Hill luncheon featuring a question and answer period with Congressmen, and Washington leaders in business and industry.

On June 11, 1776, bands of residents roamed the streets of New York attacking suspected Tories. The Provincial Congress condemned these acts though they rationalized that "a real regard to liberty" caused this mob behavior. The Provincial Congress also instructed the delegation in Philadelphia they were not authorized "to give the sense of this Colony on the question of declaring it to be, and continue, an independent state."

For Your Haylage and Mow Hay!

★ Recent years have seen the development of products to increase the value of roughage . . .

★ OVER 10 YEARS AGO, we experimented by sprinkling ALFA-ZYME over the hay as it was placed in the mow. By putting the hay into a sweat, ALFA-ZYME GREATLY INCREASED THE PALATABILITY OF THAT HAY!

★ Tests continued to cover all types of weather - wet, normal and dry years - with excellent test results.

Recommended Usage for ALFA-ZYME:

Jack Beideman, right, explains the effects of various herbicides to dealers and custom applicators. More than 100 persons were in attendance for the day-long event which was held at the J. Leroy Esbenshade farm, Manheim R7.

Herbicide field day held by Ciba-Geigy

LANDISVILLE — A field day held earlier this week by the Ciba-Geigy Company unveiled "pesticides of the future" to approximately 100 dealers and custom operators from throughout the upper Mid-Atlantic area. Held at farms near Manheim, Ciba-Geigy representatives had numerous test plots ready for inspection. The purpose was to show test results of new research products as well as standard products. The herbicides, which were specifically designed for use in corn, potato, soybean, and alfalfa fields, were also applied at various rates to offer visitors a more complete understanding of the products.

The day-long field day also included a glimpse of a new weed control product for farm ponds. Tours to several nearby test sites were conducted throughout the day as dealers, handlers, and distributors arrived from points more than 100 miles away.

Nutsedge, a weed which has surfaced in significant amounts during recent years in Lancaster County, was one of the main plants killed by the herbicides. More than 20 acres of tested areas were shown, parts of which were noticeably damaged due to the severe storm which swept through the area 12 days ago.

Kempton Fair June 18-20

25 years

1921 when he housed 1500 pullets, an enormous flock at that time. A double-deck incubator was bought the same year.

According to a company brochure, Anthony helped pioneer the field of artificial brooding in 1929 and has also been instrumental in bringing about a number of changes and improvements within the industry. His White Leghorns are considered to be one of the oldest established and proven strains in the U.S.

In addition to the milling business, which has a family history dating back to the late 19th Century, the Anthony's also farm 650 acres.

Crops includes more than 200 acres of corn, 75 of wheat, 60 of barley, 50 of oats and 80 of hay and fallow.

In addition to Donald Anthony being honored at the dinner, the following people were also recognized for their many years of service:

Harold Troutman, 44 years; Harry Graeff, 39 years; Ray Lesher, 38 years; Paul Hamm, 27 years; Pearl Spitler, 16 years; and Milo Dietrich, 18 years. Former employees - Harvey Spengler and Ray Hartman had nearly 50 and 35 years, respectively, with the poultry farm.

Co. officials attend symposium

UNIVERSITY PARK - Berk County government officials and a member of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Association took part in a County Commissioners Symposium on The Pennsylvania State University's main campus, June 2-3.

Those attending were Commissioners, Vernon K. Shaffer, Anthony J. Carabello, and Donald W. Bagenstose; Wayne Lesher, president Berks County Cooperative Extension Service and James F. Haldeman county agent.

Haldeman points out that the symposium was designed to show how Penn State College of Agriculture extension and research programs relate to and benefit the local educational Extension effort.

Sponsor of the two-day conference was the 68 member-organizations of the College's Agricultural Advisory Council, in cooperation with County Extension Associations and the College of Agriculture.

The 211 participants toured the Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center, Dairy Research Center, and sewage effluent research work.

They visited with faculty members on such topics as waste water reclamation; energy conservation alternatives; results of spray irrigation on sewage effluent; potential value and problems of disposing municipal sewage sludge on agricultural land; and research related to forage and corn varieties, weed control, and dwarf fruit trees.

Also on the agenda was a series of presentations on outstanding county and statewide Extension programs by staff members in Venango, Lancaster, Delaware, Montgomery, Indiana, Westmoreland, Fulton, and Huntingdon counties as well as campus faculty members.

The presentations centered on the main areas of Extension's educational efforts; family living, youth, farm production, and community resource development.

Other activities included a land-use issues seminar, a county commissioners panel discussion, and a Penn State football outlook conducted by Sever J. Toretti, assistant director of athletics.

HEAR SCIENTIST, INVENTOR AND FARMER

CHARLES H. CAROTHERS

From Carothers Research Labs., Inc. Red Bank, N.J. and Miami, Fla.

Explain thru pictures and slides how we are rediscovering the remarkable "Laws of Nature" that began with the laws of creation and have been here ever since for man to learn to read and interpret.

It is the shame of our modern so-called - civilization that the only humans that were beginning to understand and follow nature's laws and example were a few aboriginal savages, such as our American Indians. To their everlasting credit, they even tried to teach their white 'brothers' some of these laws.

Now in this Bicentennial year, we can look back on 200 years of achievements and mistakes. Under achievements on the farm we take off our hats to those courageous and dedicated farmers who chose to farm with the replaceable energy of animals eating from the land instead of machinery fed by irreplaceable and now scarce gas and oil.

The tragedy that is the declining fertility of our farmlands is our fault because we forgot that when we grew and sold the food and fiber on the market that we were selling the guts from our farm lands. That precious top soil as a gift and legacy from God and nature so that mankind could always have bountiful harvests that would sustain him and his kind till the end of time.

Mistake No. 1. When we sold that food and fiber on the market, it contained the precious minerals, vitamins and vitagens that it had drawn from our soil and all the market ever offered us in return for that top soil was money. But money was not enough. It was not enough for we farmers and scientists were bound by nature's "Law of Return" to bring back to our land that part of the topsoil which by now had been converted by the consumer into garbage and sewage but it still contained most of those fertilizer elements stolen from our land.

Just as we were bound by nature's law to return it to the soil, so also was the ultimate consumer bound by nature's laws to give back to us the garbage and sewage in a useable fertilizer form, such as compost.

Actually, the consumer now finds himself in a bind for there is no other place to dispose except bring it back home where it came from. Nature's law of sanitation goes like this: "No living organism can live in the refuse of its own body or those of its kind."

Then another law of nature shows the futility of the effort that is being made by most of our cities to destroy the garbage and sewage thru fire, water or chemicals. All that they have been able to accomplish to the present time is further pollution of our air, water and land. Nature's law as taught in the Physics class in school states: "No material thing is ever destroyed." Everything in the match we burn is left in the smoke and ash. The only thing we can do with such material as garbage and sewage is to change its form or its location. Our towns and cities are doing both with their out of date sewage and garbage plants that they are still building. Yet there are numerous patents in the patent office in Washington D.C. that could be used to build sewage and garbage plants that obey nature's law of return and would make available for your farms and gardens those nitrogenous and carbonaceous wastes. Thus you would be able to put life back into soil in the form of micro organisms that can change the sterile subsoil we are mostly now farming to a loose, mellow, moist and dark colored new ground that our fore fathers found in this agricultural paradise.

Now if you farm or garden, or if you are only a consumer of food, we need your help to convince your city, town or village to build or convert an established activated sludge or secondary sewage disposal plant into a conservation plant that will furnish us better plant food at lower prices and will help the municipality to sell their wastes instead of paying to throw them away.

Our corporation will act as consultant with blue prints, specifications and patent papers for their city engineer or superintendent.

Which of the "Laws of Nature" will I have to learn and obey to join that new "Era of ecological farming and gardening" that builds soil at the same time eliminating most of the cost of labor and energy fuel. This is known as automatic organic gardening and farming.

Ask us - we can help.

Which of the laws of nutrition that are found in Nature's Laws that can help us to eliminate, at least, 90 percent of the ailments we are going to have.

ASK US — WE CAN HELP!

Pennfield Farms holds Open House

EPHRATA - Pennfield Farms, one of Pennsylvania's largest and most modern egg processing companies, will hold a public open house, Saturday, June 12th (9 a.m. - 5 p.m.) and Sunday, June 13th (1 - 5 p.m.) to display its new 31,900 square foot processing plant and office complex on Schoeneck Road, just west of Ephrata.

The open house, part of an ongoing, year-long 75th Anniversary celebration at Pennfield Farms, will be hosted by general manager Donald E. Horn and his staff.

Pennfield Farms' new, enlarged processing facilities are among the most modern and efficient in the country. The company is now able to process and pack over 68,000 eggs per hour... and their annual volume is 156 million eggs. To produce that volume of eggs, Pennfield now owns approximately 700,000 laying hens.

Tours of the new facilities will include a look at Pennfield's innovative, fully automated "in-line" processing system, in which eggs are carried directly from the hens to the processing machines by conveyor belt. Though operators and quality control personnel constantly monitor the system's operation, most eggs complete the entire cycle of washing, sanitizing, candling, grading, sizing, and packing... untouched by human hands.

In conjunction with the open house, Pennfield Farms is also announcing the grand opening of their Farm Outlet Store this weekend. The store is located in the new building and will offer farm-fresh eggs at low, "direct from the farm" prices. The store will also carry the complete line of Pennfield Farms frozen chicken entrees, chicken-in-the-bag, and chicken fillets.

Everyone attending the open house will have the opportunity to buy two dozen Grade "A" Large, Pennfield Farms eggs for the special grand opening price of just 39 cents per dozen.

The growth of Pennfield Farms (formerly the L. M. Sheaffer Company) from a small, one man poultry business at the turn of the century to the large, modern egg farm and processing company which will be on display this weekend is a fascinating success story. An attractive brochure on the history of Pennfield Farms will be presented as a memento to each person attending the open house.

Pennfield Farms is a division of the Pennfield Corporation, Rohrerstown, Pa.

THERMA-STOR

FROM

COOLING SYSTEMS

A product of Dairy Equipment Company

READ THE FACTS ABOUT THERMA-STOR

1. The Thermo-Stor uses no electricity or fuel yet it makes so much hot water it will practically put your hot water heater out of business.
2. It has no moving parts and no special ventilation yet completely eliminates troublesome fan cooling condensers from your bulk tank system, reduces cold weather compressor starting problems, improves hot weather cooling efficiency, extends compressor life.
3. The Thermo-Stor saves the milk heat that common bulk systems throw away.
 - a. Because hot refrigerant from compressors flows to the Thermo-Stor instead of to an air cooled condenser. The Thermo-Stor transfers heat from the refrigerant to cold water and the cold water rapidly becomes hot water.
4. You get about a gallon of 110 degree water for every gallon of milk produced and cooled.
 - a. Almost immediately after you begin milking, the Thermo-Stor has 110 degree water available. Production of the 110 degree water continues during and after milking until all the milk has been cooled down. If 110 degrees isn't exactly the temperature you want, you can adjust the regulator from 100 degrees to 125 degrees.
5. After milking the Thermo-Stor will store up to 140 gallon of hot water at two different temperatures all by itself. The Thermo-Stor will deliver up to 90 gallon of 110 degree water, that's more than enough for the after milking needs of many dairy operations. Of course, extra storage tanks can be added if warranted by your operation. With every milking the Thermo-Stor also produces and stores 50 gallon of hot water at anywhere from 140 degrees to 165 degrees. The exact temperature reached by this 50 gallon depends upon your total Horse Power and the compressor running time from the time you start milking.
 - a. For Example: If you have two 3 Horse Power compressors that usually run for 2 hours at milking time, by the time the compressors shut off you can expect 50 gallons of 165 degree water. There are separate outlets for the 110 degree and 165 degree water. That means you can wash your pipeline and perform general cleanup at the same time all with the hot water from the Thermo-Stor.
6. But virtually free hot water is only one reason for owning a Thermo-Stor since you won't have any fan-cooled condensers, you can forget about a major cause of costly Compressor failure: burned out fan motors and there won't be any dirty fins to unclog. Unlike fan-cooled condensers, the Thermo-Stor has no special ventilation requirements so compressors can be located indoors. Cold weather starting problems are all but eliminated. Compressors will perform better in hot weather, too, by using cold water for condensing instead of hot summer air. The Thermo-Stor reduces compressor head pressure bringing about increased cooling capacity and a reduced load on the compressor. The results are faster milk cooling and longer compressor life. Increased cooling system's liability, better performance, less maintenance and lower repair costs. That's a hefty package of benefits on top of all the lower utility bills you'll receive when you own a Thermo-Stor.
7. You also get the worry free reliability of stainless steel construction.
 - a. It wouldn't make sense to design a product that improved your cooling system's reliability and then make that product in a way, that would create a reliability problem. So, we didn't: the storage and heat exchanging sections of the Thermo-Stor are made entirely of stainless steel. Instead of corrosion problems due to adverse local water conditions, you get peace of mind because your Thermo-Stor will still be trouble free and going strong years after it had paid for itself.

MILK-CHECK PROTECTION

WHEN YOUR COWS GO ON PASTURE

Although high in protein at the start, spring pastures deteriorate rapidly — and your cows and heifers will know it before you do. You will not be aware of it until milk production starts to suffer. And it may take more time and money than you'd like to bring production back up again.

What can you do to prevent pasture slump?

PUT AN AGWAY LPS FEEDER IN YOUR PASTURE FOR COWS AND HEIFERS.

LPS IS THE SENSIBLE LIQUID PROTEIN SUPPLEMENT FOR THESE REASONS:

- LPS supplies protein to compensate for the decline in pasture quality.
- Cows and heifers offered LPS free-choice tend to adjust their consumption to more closely balance their protein needs.
- LPS has the slowest ammonia release among leading supplements offered in the Northeast. (Slow release assures optimum nutrient use).
- LPS is an economical source of protein.
- LPS is a safe, efficient way to feed urea.
- Free-choice LPS means no labor. Agway fills the feeder, cows and heifers help themselves.

Nutritionist promotes milk

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

If you're a dairy farm family, Coleen Greecher is working for you.

Coleen is a nutrition consultant for Philadelphia Dairy Council, Inc., which is a regional unit of the National Dairy Council, and it is her job to work with the public in the field of nutrition education which includes, of course, the importance of including dairy foods in the diet.

Coleen works out of her home in Camp Hill and presently serves ten counties from Lancaster to Fulton. The Dairy Council itself covers all of southeastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and all of Delaware. There is also a council headquartered in Pittsburgh.

One of the major thrusts of the dairy council's programs is to schedule nutrition education workshops for educators.

Coleen said, "People are becoming much more aware of how food affects them and are learning that what they eat affects them in serious ways." She said the purpose of the workshop is to instill confidence in teachers as well as to make them more conscious of good nutrition. She explained that while most must teach nutrition to their students, especially on an elementary level, almost none have had a nutrition course to help them.

Coleen added that she and her co-workers deal a lot with the elementary level because it is easier to change habits in the young and "we should start where habits are being formed." She said, "Children enjoy anything to do with food if it is fun and on their level."

Coleen does not travel light. When she attends meetings or workshops she goes prepared, with much of the material available through Dairy Council.

Coleen packs her portfolio with some of the materials she uses in her workshop.

The emphasis in their nutrition education workshops is on encouraging people "to eat a varied diet, including something from each of the four food groups," she said.

Coleen said she encounters many misconceptions about dairy products in the course of her work, and probably the biggest one is that adults don't need to drink milk anymore. She says she informs groups that calcium is relatively difficult to get from other sources, whereas milk supplies a low-cost healthful amount of the daily requirement.

Another misconception which she tries to clear up is that people concerned about cholesterol should eliminate dairy foods from their diet. "This is not true," she says. "Dairy products contain much less fat than most people think."

Homestead Notes

She points out, "Milk is a highly natural food, and the processing is only for safety."

A common problem with milk is the confusion that results from the many different varieties of milk. Coleen discussed the many kinds. Whole milk is generally considered to have 3.25 percent fat. Then there is 2 percent milk and 1 percent milk, both of which are self-explanatory. And last there is skim milk which has .1 percent fat, meaning that almost all of the fat has been removed.

Coleen explained that the difference in milk in which fat has been reduced is that in the processing the Vitamin A is taken out also. In most cases, but not all, Vitamin A is added again. But this is a good reason to learn to read labels correctly, to know just what a food contains.

This emphasizes another big part of Coleen's job - educating people about nutritional labeling. A lot of her work is with consumer food problems and labeling is a big area of interest.

Up to now labeling is voluntary among packaged food products, but Coleen says it can be of enormous help to the shopper in comparison shopping and planning balanced family meals.

Nutritional labeling allows a shopper to compare the nutrient value of foods with the price. In special diets, reducing diets labeling can be very important.

Included on nutritional labels are calories, fat, carbohydrates, protein, Thiamin (B1), Riboflavin (B2), Niacin and Iron. Nutritional labels give both the amount of nutrients contained and the percentage of the amount needed in a balanced diet.

Coleen began her job last September and has not been involved with the Dairy Princess program, but about to be initiated. She is going to judge a local contest and will be teaching a workshop on nutrition education to the state contestants at their seminar to be held in the next month. She said she can see that the Dairy Princesses have a good opportunity to promote the dairy industry.

When she talks about milk she said she emphasizes its nutrient contribution and the fact that it is a high source of protein. She added that milk is the easiest source of calcium and a very good source of riboflavin, which is a B vitamin important for energy.

She said she is also concerned about the proper use of milk in retaining its good flavor and its keeping quality.

She works with many organizations in spreading the word about dairy products and good nutrition. She works with the nutrition education committees in the various counties she serves, as well as with public health personnel and dietitians. She said she and the other nutritionists with the Dairy Council are active in many professional organizations.

Coleen has also worked with nutrition programs

My Thoughts and Welcome to Them

(With apologies to James Thurber)

By JOANNE SPAHR

Well, here it is . . . my space. My little nook to say whatever I want to as long as it doesn't offend. And, do you know what? I can't think of one original thing to say. Well, I could, if I tried — I've always excelled at making up stories on the spur of the moment (nobody ever reads them past the first sentence, of course, but I can still dash them off like crazy . . . People used to say to me, "Joanne, you could be such a great writer if your stories weren't so bad.") Well, enough of that.

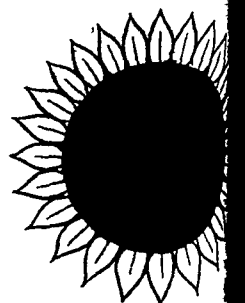

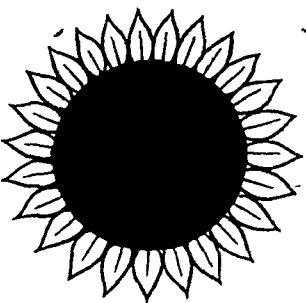

I really want to say some things I've felt ever since I began this job five days ago. In that short time I've met some of the most genuinely interesting, honest, and sincere people I've yet to come across in my short span of 22 years. That may seem hard to believe, but good people stand out, I think, and everyone I've met so far has made a mark in my memory for one reason or another.

I met some people simply because they went out of their way to seek me out and say "Hello" and to give a much appreciated word of encouragement. Others, I've met on assignment. With some of these people I was fortunate enough to share an insight into a rich cultural heritage I've only before been able to read about in books. With others my own age, I was able to make friends and express personal feelings. The list of what I've gained from the people I've met goes on and on, and luckily, I've just begun. I'm looking forward to meeting more of these good people in the upcoming months.

Like I said, these sentiments are nothing original — I've seen the same thing written in this little thought-catcher corner, before. I guess it's an undeniable and outstanding fact — farm people are good people.

A lot of Coleen's begins with telephone contact. Here she takes notes as she talks.

ing unwed mothers, and in June will be speaking to the senior citizens' organizations in York County. Coleen is well prepared for her nutrition work, having graduated from The Pennsylvania State University with a degree in home economics education. She earned her Masters Degree in nutrition science in the College of Human Development at Penn State in 1973. Another qualification is that she grew up on a dairy farm in Troy, Bradford County, where her father milked stein cows. She said with a laugh, "I know how to milk a cow." Her father eventually went into the farm equipment business and is now selling silos. Coleen's husband, Stephen M. Greecher, Jr., is a program analyst for the Governor's office of the Budget in Harrisburg. Coleen explained that the Dairy Council is funded from part of the promotional money set aside from dairymen's checks in the federal milk marketing orders. In addition to the educational teaching materials available they offer other promotional aids.

They have exhibits which deal with general nutrition and with dairy products, and they have an oversized model cow, "Geraldine," which draws a lot of attention wherever she goes. The exhibits are free for use at fairs and other promotional events. Last Saturday three of the exhibits were used in conjunction with a dairy promotion at Park City shopping center in Lancaster.

The Dairy Council also has a film library which features films dealing with nutrition education and dairy products and filmstrips on the same subjects. There is no charge for these except for paying return postage.

There is a wide range of brochures and pamphlets available in subjects ranging from the care of milk to an explanation of the four food groups. Most materials are available at no charge or "at cost," Coleen said.

Additional information about their programs can be obtained by contacting the Dairy Council at 1225 Industrial Highway, South Hampton, Pa. 18966; or Mrs. Greecher at 19 Courtland Street, Camp Hill, Pa. 17011.

Coleen and her co-workers at the Dairy Council assist with June is Dairy Month promotions, but to them the promotion of "nature's most nearly perfect food" is year-round work.

Broken Bit 4-H Club

This month's meeting of the Broken Bit 4-H Club was held at the Farm and Home Center. During the business meeting, several topics of interest were discussed. On June 20 at 1:00 p.m. the club will hold a gymkhana at the Lower Hopewell Horse Center. Following the gymkhana, the club will hold a chicken barbeque.

At the meeting it was also decided that the club will hold its summer meetings at the homes of various 4-Hers.

IF YOUR HOME HAS A SEPTIC TANK

HERE'S THE EASY WAY TO KEEP IT TROUBLE-FREE -- SKIP COSTLY REPAIR BILLS

Dear Friend:

You know what I mean by "trouble free". Septic tanks do have a way of giving folks problems -- and just when you need the money for something else.

The sensible thing to do is to avoid costly plumbing jobs to begin with.

Now it's easy by flushing low-cost SEPTI-ZONE down your commode once a month.

COSTS ONLY PENNIES - SAVES BIG MONEY

What is SEPTI-ZONE? It's a new powdery substance that really does the trick in cleaning out lines and tank walls. All you do is pour some down your commode once every month. Completely safe for children and pets. Fact is, if there's a youngster around your house he or she might like to be the "official septic tank cleaner-outer"!

And it's not only safe for people and pets. IT IS 100% SAFE FOR PIPES TOO.

All kinds of pipes, including plastic.

KEEPS YOUR SEPTIC TANK IN A-1 SHAPE

The old saying "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is sure true when it comes to SEPTI-ZONE. Never again will you have to worry about your septic tank overflowing. SEPTI-ZONE automatically converts all wastes to liquid! And it stops odors from starting too.

What if you have a "new" septic tank? They need it too -- to prevent something from going wrong. If you have a new tank you won't need to use as much SEPTI-ZONE down the commode to begin with. But if your tank is several years old, be sure to pour about a pound of SEPTI ZONE down the commode the first time. After that, only 3 ounces a month.

STOP ODORS-ONCE AND FOR ALL

Let's face it - is there anything more embarrassing than a foul odor - especially when company comes. Not to mention the daily discomfort for your family. There simply is no reason you have to worry about this problem ever again. Not with SEPTI-ZONE so readily available-and so easy to use. Invite company anytime you want and stop worrying. Put SEPTI-ZONE to work for you and relax....

(Over please)

ENDS PUMPING OUT

If you've "lived" with a septic tank for some while, you know how irritating and time-consuming it is to have it pumped out. Yet chances are you have to do this every so often ...

UNLESS you start using SEPTI-ZONE. SEPTI-ZONE actually ends the "pumping out" problem indefinitely.

And once you get into the habit of using this "cleaner-outer" once a month, you'll wish you had come across this miracle of a product before now. It's that good. It's that reliable And so easy to use!

WHAT SEPTI-ZONE DOES

Here's how SEPTI-ZONE works. You see, any septic tank must be kept clear. Ordinarily this requires a routine pumping out job every so often But SEPTI-ZONE does the job instead.

It dissolves, digests, and liquifies all organic waste matter. And this includes paper, fibers, cotton, sludge greases and fats Everything! And all you have to do is remember to pour some in your commode each month

100% MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Order a supply today (order form enclosed). Try it See how it works. If you're not 100% satisfied, for any reason whatever, just send back any unused portion. You'll receive every cent of your money back immediately by return mail. Not a question or a quibble.

And this can be any time in the future -- you name it.

This is how confident we are that you'll find SEPTI-ZONE a product that your home can't do without. If your septic tank has ever backed up on you, you know what a problem it is! To prevent this from happening, take a minute now to fill out the Order Form and drop it in today's mail. I will see that your order is filled and on its way to you at once.

Dear Sirs

In January 1975 I ordered from you 2 lbs. of your SEPTI-ZONE and it really works. We used SEPTI-ZONE as directed, putting it in at the start of each line so that the material would flow through the entire system before reaching the main City line.

A week or so after doing this, we noticed that at each inspection port, the pipe looked unusually clean, such as it had never been. Following this we used 3 oz. as suggested every week. Since using this we have had no trouble in our lines and they continue to look so clean it is remarkable.

Please send 1 cs. (12 lbs.) of SEPTI-ZONE and I will be glad to recommend this product to anyone at any time, and to show our inspection ports to anybody who might wish to see this remarkable result of the treatment.

OPEN SEPTIC TANKS

WITHOUT EXPENSIVE PUMPING

SEPTI-ZONE DOES THE JOB FOR PENNIES

• No More Expensive Pumping.

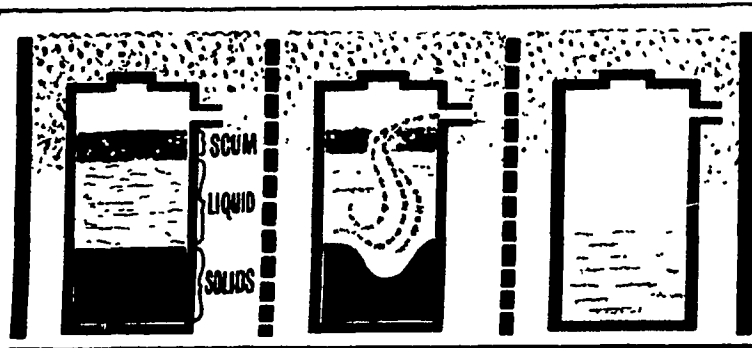

SEPTI-ZONE saves money and inconvenience by doing away with pumping out septic tanks periodically. A small amount of SEPTI-ZONE converts all wastes into liquid overnight. It will clean the lines leading to the septic tank. It goes to work immediately, digests the solids, cleans the walls and then travels to the drain fields. It opens the earth and lets the earth absorb.

• No More Offensive Odors.

When the septic tank overflows into the drain fields methane gas is released. SEPTI-ZONE prevents this. SEPTI-ZONE is easy to use. Simply pour and flush toilet. Harmless to humans and animals.

• No More Sudden Explodings.

Even if the septic-system is working at present, SEPTI-ZONE makes sure that the septic system does not all of a sudden "EXPLODE". SEPTI-ZONE will keep the septic tank always trouble free

Before treatment Septi-Zone is added Clean Tank

Eliminates the need for costly, routine cleanings.

Septic tanks must be kept free-flowing or they require pumping out at routing intervals. Neither yeast nor chemicals can maintain the enzyme/bacteria balance necessary to liquefy the organic matter. But Septi-Zone will dissolve, digest and liquefy all organic waste matter including paper, fibres, cotton, sludge, greases and fats. Regular use of Septi-Zone will give you a trouble-free sewage system for just pennies a treatment.

IN ADDITION . . . You will receive a booklet with your order which explains how all septic systems work. It will make you completely knowledgeable about your septic system and is entitled "Your Home Septic System—A to Z"

How quickly one's mood can change! I was all set to write on a happy note and tell of a pleasant weekend. Five of our six children were home and I got some very nice birthday presents - like a pretty wind chime for the porch and promises of others to come. Philip tells me that he will put an electric light near my canning shelf so that I can tell if I'm bringing tomatoes or tomato juice upstairs for supper.

BUT - last night we had a bad hail storm, as I'm sure others did too. This morning I surveyed the damage to my garden and it would be easy to shed tears. Yesterday I picked 16 qt. of sugar peas and today the blossoms and stems of my 4 foot plants lay broken on the ground. The tomatoes are only sticks, the cabbage and broccoli are shredded and the lettuce is gone.

Next, we discovered a valve stuck on the water softener and no part can be obtained for months. The service on appliances is terrible sometimes. Their only suggestion is to buy a new one. Then Philip found his cow dead in the meadow in the morning and so a happy note becomes a somber note as dark and gloomy thoughts pervade my mind.

Recently, my husband and I spent a Sunday afternoon visiting Donegal Mills Plantation south of Mt. Joy, Pa.

Seeing the mansion house, the simple millers house, the bake house and mill property built in 1736 was enhanced to a large degree when Allen learned it was built by one of his ancestors - Jacob Kraybill. Apparently he was the grandfather of Peter Kraybill.

Many facts and figures are lost in the distant past but every now and then we discover some interesting data.

York Dairy Princess chosen

BAIR - It was a nervous, fun-filled night for eight lovely dairy farmers' daughters last Saturday when the York County Dairy industry held its 21st dairy princess contest at the 4-H center here. Chosen to this year's court were Ann Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Daugherty, York R1, second alternate; Sherri Stump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stump, York R10, first alternate; and Cindy Rutter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rutter, 53 Lightner Rd., York, dairy princess.

Master of Ceremonies, Jan Wiley, led into the evenings festivities with a comic monologue, after which, he began interviewing the contestants. Each girl was asked to describe her father's dairy operation, to give a brief description of her future plans, and to answer a "difficult" question designed for her. Each was then judged 40 percent on appearance, 25 percent on personality and poise, 20 percent on speaking ability, and 15 percent on knowledge of the industry.

In answer to the first question, Sherri Stump, first alternate, described her father's farming operation as having three Harvestores, and a herringbone milking parlor where her father milks 300 Holsteins. Sherri wants to be a nurse, and is presently a candy striper at York Hospital. She attends Spring Grove Sr. High School and is a member of Y-Teens, Sunday school, and 4-H. As first alternate, she received a $20 cash award, an engraved necklace, and a "Milk is a Natural" T-Shirt.

When it was her turn, Ann Daugherty explained that her father farms 107 acres and four farms in addition to his own. He also milks about 30 Holsteins. Through further questioning, the 18-year-old revealed that she has aspirations to go into respiratory therapy. A former 4-H member, she attended Northeastern High School where she belonged to the National Honor Society. She also received $20 in cash, an engraved necklace, and a "Milk is a Natural" T-Shirt.

While the judges deliberated, the audience of over 150 was entertained with a trumpet duet of Bert Bacherach tunes. The audience was also treated to

Princess is active youth

Cindy Rutter, 1976 York County Dairy Princess, is a bouncy, effervescent, 16-year-old with a catchy smile and a lot of dairy knowledge. She's also one of those teenagers that makes you wonder how she manages to do it all.

First of all, her list of dairy awards, honorary offices, and activities seems endless. Active in 4-H for eight years, she is presently the outstanding Pa. Guernsey Youth. To receive this honorary award, she was chosen from among youths from all over the state. She is also Outstanding Dairy Judge in Pa. this year, and is part of the team which took second place in National 4-H dairy judging. She is quick to add that this is the highest any Pa. team has yet placed.

Delving into her past, she is a past president of the Central York 4-H Dairy Club and is presently secretary of that organization. A branch of a much larger York 4-H Dairy Club, this organization is only in its second year. When asked how she got elected to the presidency of the organization the first year, she replied, "I guess I was just the most outgoing, so the kids voted for me."

She can't claim popularity as the key to her success in showing her animals, however. For at least the past four years, she has had the Champion Guernsey Cow at the York 4-H Roundup. She also had Grand Champion Guernsey at the 4-H state show in 1974.

That's still not the end of her successes. The York Co. 4-H Dairy Herd, of which she is a three-year member, placed first at the Pa. Farm Show.

As a farmer's daughter, Cindy helps with the work on the farm. She feeds calves, bales and unloads hay and straw in the summer, and is responsible for doing the secretarial work on the farm. This includes keeping track of the records and show entries.

Her father, Mr. Rutter, has a 225 acre farm with 210 Guernseys, 10 of which are milking. Cindy also mentioned during her interview in the contest that he has five silos, three of which are Harvestores.

Other activities Cindy participates in are Reading Girls, York Assembly, of which she's on the team. At Central High School she is the president of the student council, captain of the rifle corps, a member of the National Honor Society, member of the yearbook newspaper staffs, and member of the track team.

Her ambition is to go into animal husbandry or science.

"I'd like to go into dairy a career because I just love animals," she told the audience last Saturday night. Her choice of college is yet to be made but she is considering Penn State, the University of Maryland.

As dairy princess, she was awarded $50, a special engraved necklace, and a "Milk is a Natural" T-Shirt.

1975-76 Cumberland Co.
Dairy Princess

During my reign as Cumberland County Dairy Princess, I have had many opportunities to show the public the importance of dairying and the dairy products we all work to produce. I have met with 20 farm and civic organizational groups, recorded over 40 radio promotional tapes, appeared on WGAL-TV, Lancaster, "Noonday on 8," and rode in four local parades, as well as entering the seven elementary schools of the Cumberland Valley School District.

In the schools, we visited with 3300-plus students and over 125 teachers. The local dairymen took Martha, the model cow, to each school and told the students all about her out on the parking lots. They explained her common illnesses, her diet, her weight, her age, the amount of calves she had, and how much milk she gave.

The students then met in the classroom with me. There, I told them about the route milk takes from the time it leaves the cow until it is served on their kitchen table, and also the important vitamins and nutrients that are found in milk. The importance of milk, and why it should be included in all diets, was also stressed.

Each teacher was given a packet of educational materials to use in classroom work. Depending on the grade of the students, they each received a picture of a cow to color, a coloring book of farm activities, or a word maze of dairy-related terms. Each student also received a recipe folder to take home to their mothers and a wooden pencil that reminds them to drink at least three glasses of milk daily.

During the last year, I have experienced many memorable activities. These will hold a lasting impression in my life. I, Debbie Nehf, will crown the new Cumberland County Dairy Princess on Wednesday evening, June 18.

"Angel's Rainbow Dessert"

If you're looking for a rainbow after spring showers, you may or may not find one. Of course, you can always create one of your own in the form of a springtime dessert. This one's called Angel's Rainbow. It's ideal for the many special occasions of spring, such as Easter, graduation parties, showers or Mother's Day.

This dessert rainbow starts with angel food cake, either purchased or baked in a loaf pan, then cut into four

Fruits, vegetables to be uniform

To make U.S. grades for fresh fruits and vegetables more useful to consumers and marketers, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has adopted a policy for establishing uniform grade names for these products. Effective July 1, the terms U.S. Fancy, No. 1, U.S. No. 2, and U.S. No. 3 will be the grade names used in establishing or revising grade standards for fresh fruits and vegetables and nuts. The grade names will be adopted in the normal process of revising or establishing standards for individual products.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), which develops grade standards for food and farm products, proposed the uniform grade nomenclature for fresh fruits and vegetables in the Oct. 6, 1975, Federal Register.

Under the new policy, the grade names represent the following levels of quality: U.S. Fancy - Premium quality, covers only the top quality produced; U.S. No. 1 - The chief trading grade, represents good, average quality that is practical to pack under commercial conditions, covers the bulk of the quality range produced; U.S. No. 2 - Intermediate between U.S. No. 1 and U.S. No. 3, noticeably superior to U.S. No. 3; U.S. No. 3 - The lowest merchantable quality practical to pack under normal conditions.

AMS officials explained that consumers are not likely to see immediate results of the new policy because few fresh fruits and vegetables are labeled by grade in retail stores. Use of the U.S. grade standards and official grading services is voluntary, and grade labeling is not required by Federal law.

Floyd F. Hedlund, director of AMS' fruit and vegetable division, said the new policy for uniform nomenclature is the same as that proposed except that raw products for processing are excluded and requests for minor revisions in grade standards will not necessarily trigger the requirement to revise grade names of a commodity.

Standards for raw products for processing, which are entirely separate from those established for fruits and vegetables for the fresh market, are excluded because these standards are used exclusively in contracts between growers and processors of canned, frozen, or other processed products.

A total of 224 comments were received and considered in adopting the proposal. The majority of the comments came from consumers. Most commenters supported the proposal, saying that adoption of uniform grade names would help consumers select the quality of fruit or vegetable they desired. Those who opposed the proposal said that changing long-established grade names would hinder marketing, or that the grade names were not of use to consumers. Some commenters wished to eliminate U.S. Fancy as the premium grade and have U.S. No. 1 as the top grade, saying that this would reduce confusion.

The policy for uniform grade nomenclature for fresh fruits and vegetables was published in the May 25 Federal Register. Copies may be obtained from the Fruit and Vegetable Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Selecting Furnishings For Older Citizens

During a lifetime many items are collected in a home — furniture, pictures, art objects, dishes, clothes and jewelry — just to mention a few. However, when older people find it necessary to move from a large house to smaller quarters it may be difficult to decide which items to keep and which to give up.

I would like to offer some guidelines to help assess possessions when space is limited.

Is the piece usable rather than purely decorative? Ninety percent of the items should have some use.

Is the piece versatile? Will it earn its keep? For example, a bedside table with drawers offers surface and storage space; a small upright desk with open shelving above also serves more than one function.

Is the piece well balanced? TV trays, small pedestal-style tables and other more fragile furniture items may pose a safety hazard if leaned on.

Is it in proportion to the new space? With lower ceilings, large or bulky furniture may crowd a not-too-generous living space.

Is it easily maintained? Will it be a safety hazard?

Throw rugs, fringed rugs and loose corners of bedspreads increase chances of tripping and falling.

Will it simplify or complicate daily living? A large glass heirloom bowl may become a daily irritant, taking up space needed for a necessary item such as a clock or radio.

Will this article bring daily pleasure and perhaps, "lift the spirit"? Items such as photographs and souvenirs can be essential items if they make a person feel at home.

Will it be helpful in maintaining present relationships with friends and relatives? Think about having enough seats or sleeping provisions for guests.

Will the items promote new friendships? Some mementos or family heirlooms have interesting histories which may stimulate conversation and spark mutual interests with new friends.

Analyze Wardrobe When Cleaning Closets

If you're cleaning closets, make sure you study your discards. If you know why the clothing was unsatisfactory or what made it a wornout success, you can make wiser clothing buys in the future.

You may have merely outgrown some garments or perhaps styles have changed. Or a new job could have required different types of clothing. Or, perhaps you've altered your lifestyle.

Your purchase may not have been right to begin with if fabric was hard to clean or did not wear well. The construction might be poor or the style or color unbecoming.

Or perhaps you bought the clothing in a hurry or under pressure from someone else. If you're discarding clothes because of your poor choice, try not to make the same mistake again.

If you're retiring a wornout success, study it, too. Try to discover what was positive about the garment — its style, color or was it just a comfortable fit. Then you can look for a similar item the next time you shop for clothes.

Lamb Club

New members of the York County 4-H Lamb Club practiced blocking and grooming lambs for show when they met recently at the home of Stewart Ebersole, York. Older members of the club demonstrated the proper way to show lambs. The 4-Hers were also reminded of a sheep field day at Penn State University on June 19 and the club's tour of the Buck's County Tannery on July 24.

Phyllis Gross plans big year for women

YORK - Newly appointed to the position of Women's Committee chairman for York County Farmers' Association, Phyllis Gross, Manchester R2, has a full schedule ahead of her.

Having planned the Ladies' Day Out in May for the county, she is on the Regional Day Out committee for the July 13 event at the Penn Ram, Mechanicsburg.

A standing committee of six to eight women will soon be appointed to administer the various projects coming up. They will be meeting to set goals as well as plan the exhibit for the York Mall in celebration of National Farm Wife Month in November.

"Farm Women on the Go" will be the theme of the mammoth display featuring farm women's activities on the farm and in addition to farm work.

"We shall be recruiting the talents of all our women to gain recognition for the full and productive lives they lead," announced Mrs. Gross. "Posters, pictures, costumes, crafts, tableaux, slide shows, music, hobbies, volunteer work - anything that gives an adequate coverage to the depiction of how diversified we are is what we are looking for."

Displays of canned goods, fresh fruits and vegetables, rugs, afghans, paintings, quilts, etc., are just a few of the things farm women on the go take time to accomplish.

The fact that they teach Bible School, tutor children, work off the farm, as well as keep books, run tractors, milk cows, raise livestock, manage farm stores, all need to be shown to the public, according to the chairman.

"Unlike the criticism we've gleaned from Chaves, we do not just loaf and live off the fat of the land. Here's our chance to make a positive impression of what we do accomplish," asserts the Manchester farm wife.

"November 12 and 13 are our days to reap good will and education for all," she concluded.

Serving the membership of York County Farmers' Association, the Women's Committee will also take on the August 5 picnic at the 4-H Center, Bair, and the Annual Meeting October 7 at the Dover Fire Co. where policy development will take the stage.

In their sights, too, is another Mall display during March, 1977, in observance of National Ag Day.

"For all these activities, we need ideas and committed farm women to carry them out. We shall move forward in strengthening the association and in telling the farmer's story," stated the new leader.

Mrs. Gross succeeds Mariam Waltemyer, Red Lion R3, who served as Women's Chairman the past two years.

Fulton Grange meets

At a recent meeting of Fulton Grange 66 several legislative measures were discussed.

During the business meeting it was moved and seconded to oppose Housebill 2836 which would provide the General Assembly, its committees, and individual members with a source of independent information, evaluation, and expertise on public issues. This would be accomplished through the use of the base resources of knowledge available at colleges and universities located in the commonwealth.

Housebill 1696 was also opposed. This bill states that the confirmation of public utility commission members would require only a simple majority in the Senate.

At the Grange meeting, Charles McSparren announced plans for a one-day bus tour to Gettysburg, Harpers Ferry, and International Village on Saturday, July 17. Plans were also announced for a weekend tour of New York on October 9 and 10. Interested people should contact Charles McSparren.

The Regional Youth Conference will be held on Sunday, June 13, at Virginville Grange. All interested in attending should contact Peggy Galbreath. Anyone who wants to attend Leadership School on June 29 to July 1 should contact Mrs. Ruthann Wood.

The next meeting of the Fulton Grange will be on June 14 and will consist of county visitation and

Pesticide hearings slated

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - A series of three hearings will be held on June 28-29-30 by the Maryland Department of Agriculture on the proposed new Maryland Pesticide Regulations.

A full copy of the proposed regulations was published in the June 9th "Maryland

The hearings will be held as follows:

June 28th in Baltimore at the Holiday Inn on Belmont Ave. and Security Boulevard, beginning at 8 p.m.

June 29th in Annapolis at the Maryland Department of Agriculture's conference room, Parole Plaza (next to Woodies), beginning at 10 a.m. strawberry ice cream night. Salisbury and Colerain Granges will present a program on discoveries and inventions.

An open meeting will be held on June 28. For this, the agriculture committee has invited Mr. Raymond Weber, public relations director of Dairy Council, Inc., to speak on nutritional aspects of dairy food. A hay and haylage contest will also be conducted. The public is invited to attend.

GETTYSBURG — Dennis, dairy goat owner from Springs, was elected temporary chairman of the newly formed South Central Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association at their organizational meeting. Ted Shhaus, York Springs, was elected to serve as temporary secretary.

goat's milk and their products, supporting the 4-H Dairy Goat Project and providing the opportunity for goat owners and interested people to become better acquainted and exchange ideas and experiences. Some topics to be covered at future meetings will include feeds and feeding goats, rules and regulations concerning sale of raw goat's milk, diseases, kidding, management, production testing and record keeping.

To assist the temporary officers in organizing the new association, William Grace, Dillsburg, was appointed membership chairman and Joe Davies, Gettysburg, was named program chairman.

Mrs. Faye Norris, past president of the Maryland Dairy Goat Association was guest speaker and outlined procedure for organizing a goat association and the elements needed for a successful association.

Mrs. Norris emphasized the importance of all the members, not just a few, to become actively involved and support the activities of the association. She encouraged all the members to have ideas in their minds on what they want to accomplish and work on making these ideas a reality. Mrs. Norris felt the key to success was the association must be a service group conducting educational programs and workshops.

The 41 attending goat owners and interested people set the next meeting of the association for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 24 at the Adams County Cooperative Extension Service Office.

ADA promotes milk

American Dairy Association's (ADA) 1976 summer milk promotion during June Dairy Month will focus on "Summertime Naturals" - dairy foods that fit naturally into summertime eating patterns.

"Summertime Naturals" will cue shoppers to include cool and refreshing dairy products in their warm-weather eating plans.

To toast June Dairy Month, ADA will feature a free milk offer in cooperation with the Kitchens of Sara Lee. Shoppers can get a free half-gallon of milk by mailing proof of purchase from any three Sara Lee bakery products.

ADA will support the free milk offer with TV and radio commercials and newspaper advertising.

In-store display kits for the "Summertime Naturals" promotion will be installed in 18,000 supermarkets. Each kit contains:

two "Summertime Naturals" mobiles (one featuring the free milk offer) that have attached product posters;

an ice cream mobile designed to hang over the freezer case;

two freezer case rail strips that feature ice cream served with Sara Lee desserts;

three dairy case banners that show dairy food serving suggestions; and two dairy case price rail strips with refund sheets that give full details about the free milk offer.

In addition the kits include shelf-talkers with pads of tear-off coupons for ADA's new cookbook, "Mealtime Mastery."

Vaccinations recommended for horses

Mosquito breeding season is a good time to remind horse owners about vaccinating their horses against equine encephalomyelitis, says John Schwartz, Adams County agricultural agent.

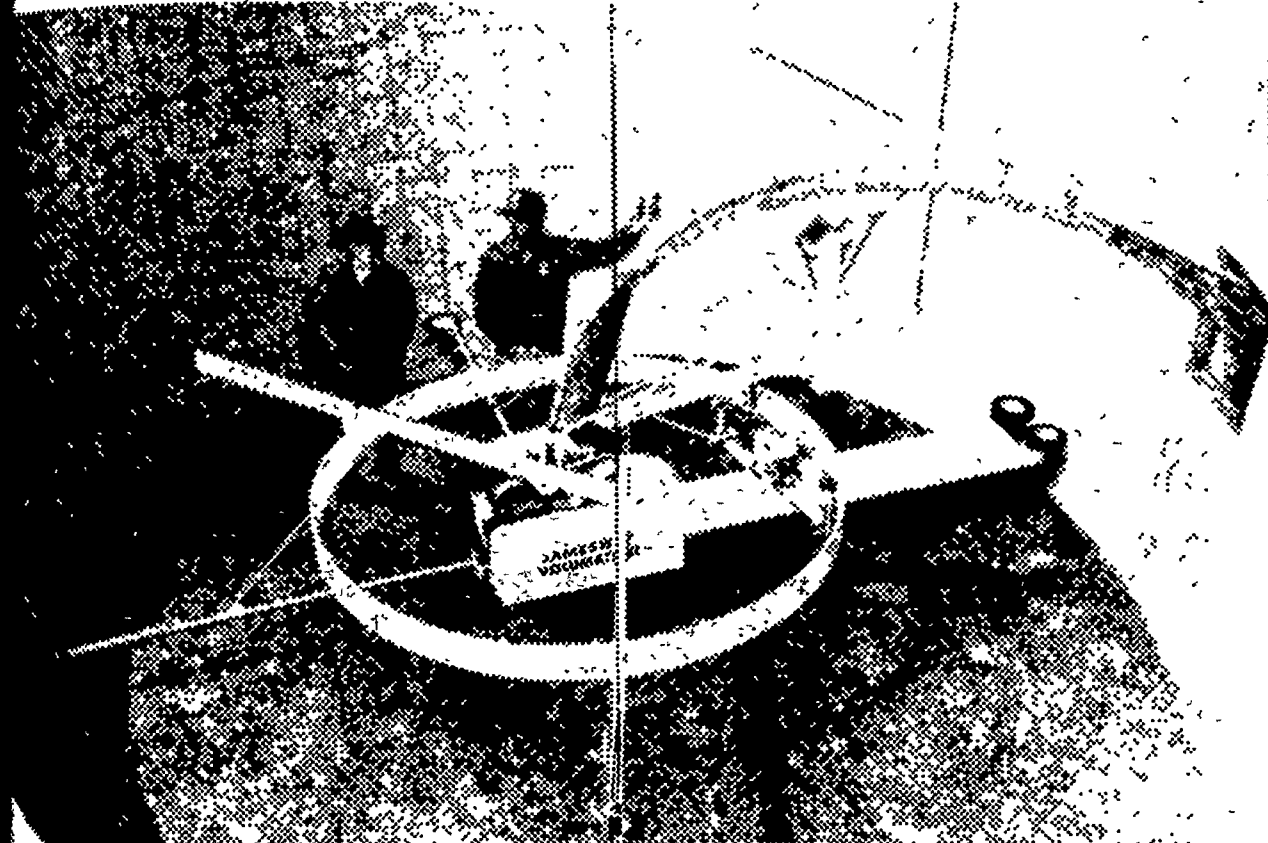

Equine encephalomyelitis or sleeping sickness as it is commonly called is a virus disease whose symptoms are depression, high fever, incoordination and reeling gait. The horse may also experience loss of vision, drowsiness and an inability to swallow. Paralysis and death usually follow within two or three days.

The vaccine must be administered by deep intramuscular injection of two doses 21 to 28 days apart, both for initial vaccination and for annual revaccination. Consult your veterinarian on which type of vaccine should be used for your particular situation.

Institutional farm ranks first

This barn at the Wernersville State Hospital was built in 1916, but it's far from being an antique. The structure would, in fact, be the envy of many dairymen as it is of sound construction, practically designed, and well equipped.

By DIETER KRIEG
WERNERSVILLE - Berks County's highest producing dairy herd for 1975 belonged to the Wernersville State Hospital, here. It's also the only herd in the County to have surpassed the 700-pounds of butterfat barrier. The herd's DHIA average of 18,510 pounds of milk and 705 of fat on 66 cows is a source of pride at the farm, which is neatly tucked away at the foot of South Mountain.

Going strong again this year, and likely to finish at the top of the DHIA list for 1976, (the latest rolling herd average for butterfat is 712) the farm is only one of two state-owned farms which is still operating in the black. Ironically, however, this farm and the one at Somerset face possible extinction along with the debt-ridden state farms.

While that is a story in itself, let it suffice to say that the institutional farms are experiencing financial difficulties. One big reason is comparatively high-priced union labor. The farms have been operating under union regulations for the past several years, whereas much of the work had previously been performed by as many as 150 patients.

Asked to cite three major factors as to why the Wernersville State Hospital herd of Holsteins is doing so well, farm manager Dallas Wagner unhesitatingly answered: "Breeding, good help and feeding." Herdsman Howard Corl was later asked the same question and responded with an identical answer.

Wagner, a 20-year veteran manager at the state-owned grounds, explained that he has had his difficulties with some union people, but adds "this is the best group of men I've ever had ... my telephone no longer rings in the middle of the night, and at the end of May I'll be taking my first week of vacation in 20 years."

Corl, herdsman since 1957, and an employee here since 1943, explained further that the cows are now in better health than they've ever been before. They're fed and milked properly by competent personnel and incidents of diseases and complications have been markedly reduced. He noted further that high production is dependent on healthy cows, and that, in turn, hinges on good help. "We have good milkers and can depend on them," he affirmed.

According to both Wagner and Corl that wasn't always the case when work was done by patients themselves. But that's not to say they lacked interest or enthusiasm. Many had to be forcefully kept away from the farm after hired labor was brought in.

The employees - all of them former farmers - generally have things under control. Wagner, for example, no longer has to go out in the middle of the night to check on the herd and-or problems. On the other hand, significant labor costs have been added to the operation and only two of the state's farms are able to get by on their own. The 12 men working at the farm work 7½ hours per day with the first shift starting at 3:30 a.m. and finishing at 11:30 a.m.

Established in 1894, the Wernersville State Hospital started its own farm 82 years ago. A magnificent barn was built which could still be the envy of many dairymen today. The solid structure is modernized and equipped with automatic barn cleaners, inverted V-stalls, a pipeline and lots of windows. It all appeared to be in excellent repair.

A complete set of records has been kept since the beginning, and are thought to be an important management tool. Wagner, a congenial man, pulled out a few old books to illustrate the progress that has been made over the years. Most of the butterfat records in 1916 (the earliest year available), ranged from 300 to 370 pounds; with a number of them below that and only three over 400. Wagner noted that the original dairy of Ayrshire-Holstein bloodlines came with the farm when it was purchased in 1892. That helps to explain some of the comparatively high-fat tests which are shown in the old records.

Twenty years ago the Hospital herd's average was 12,446 pounds of milk and of fat on 81 cows.

Hospital herd's average was 12,446 pounds of milk and of fat on 81 cows.

The farm relies entirely on its own acreage for feed. Only a 38 per cent protein supplement and various additives are purchased.

All told, the institution sprawls over more than 300 acres, but only about 300 are actually farmed. Additional land could be plowed up and harvested, and even better production records could be attained, Wagner hinted. He had more help. He is in charge of 16 men, including the grounds-keeping crew. In addition, he is an active fireman at the institution's own fire department.

The milking string usually fed corn silage twice a day. Now, with plenty of grass available, green chop replaces silage for feeding. Either way, each cow takes in about 60 to 70 pounds of roughage, counting hay.

A 16 per cent home-mixed grain ration is fed three times daily according to production - but never more than 24 pounds per cow. Heifers receive anywhere from 15 to 18 pounds of grain per day. "We've tried less feeding once and stalled the cows," added Wagner, expressing his dissatisfaction with that practice.

Feeding hay is a different situation. Cows are allowed to eat all they want. The average intake is between 10 and 18 pounds per head, Corl figured. It's mostly alfalfa, with both first and later cut varieties fed daily.

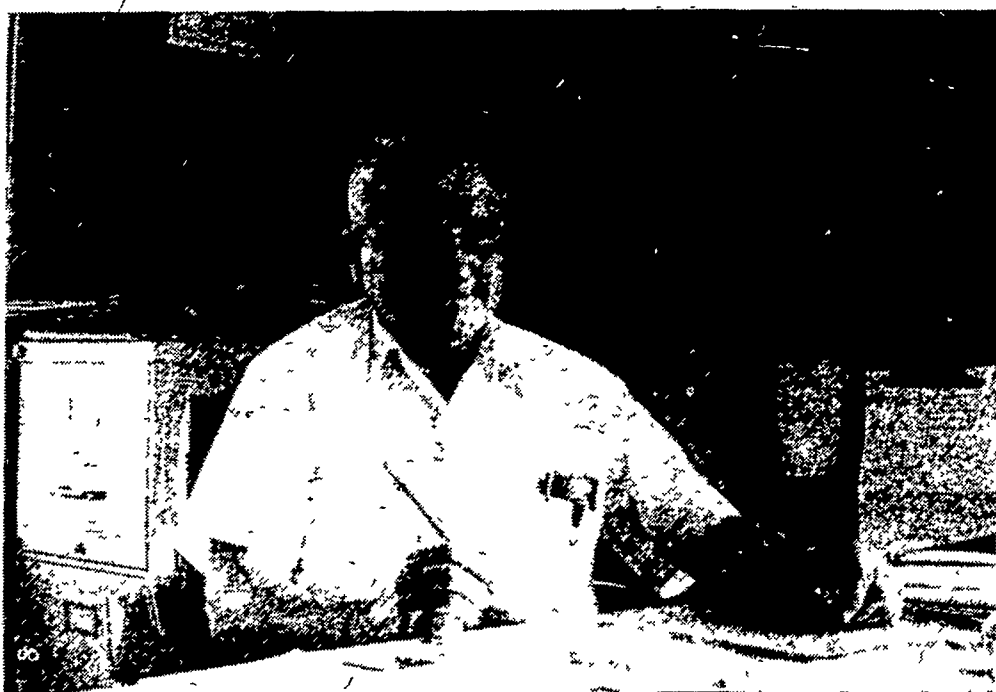

The breeding program is rated by both Corl and Wagner as one of the primary reasons for good production. It involves a thorough record-keeping system. Corl takes personal herdsman Howard Corl offers a few heifers. He has been the state-owned farm at Wernersville for 33 years, serving as herdsman since 1957. The WSH herd is the highest DHIA average in Berks County, and the 16th best in all of Pa.

Managing the Wernersville State Hospital Farm as well as the grounds is Dallas Wagner. He's been at the farm for 20 years, watching production increase from 12,446 pounds per cow to its present 18,510.

Institutional

responsibility for observing the cows and recording any information. Due to the cow's high production, they're not bred back until after 90 days, instead of the customary 60 days. "Breeding cows while production is up gives poor results," Corl explained. Heifers are bred at 15 to 16 months of age.

Several years ago a new, well-lit, modern barn was built for heifers and calves. All heifers and some of the bulls are raised at the farm, and the importance of doing a good job with young stock is understood by everyone involved. Both Corl and Wagner are particularly careful about keeping the smaller animals out of drafts and special partitions have been installed specifically for that purpose.

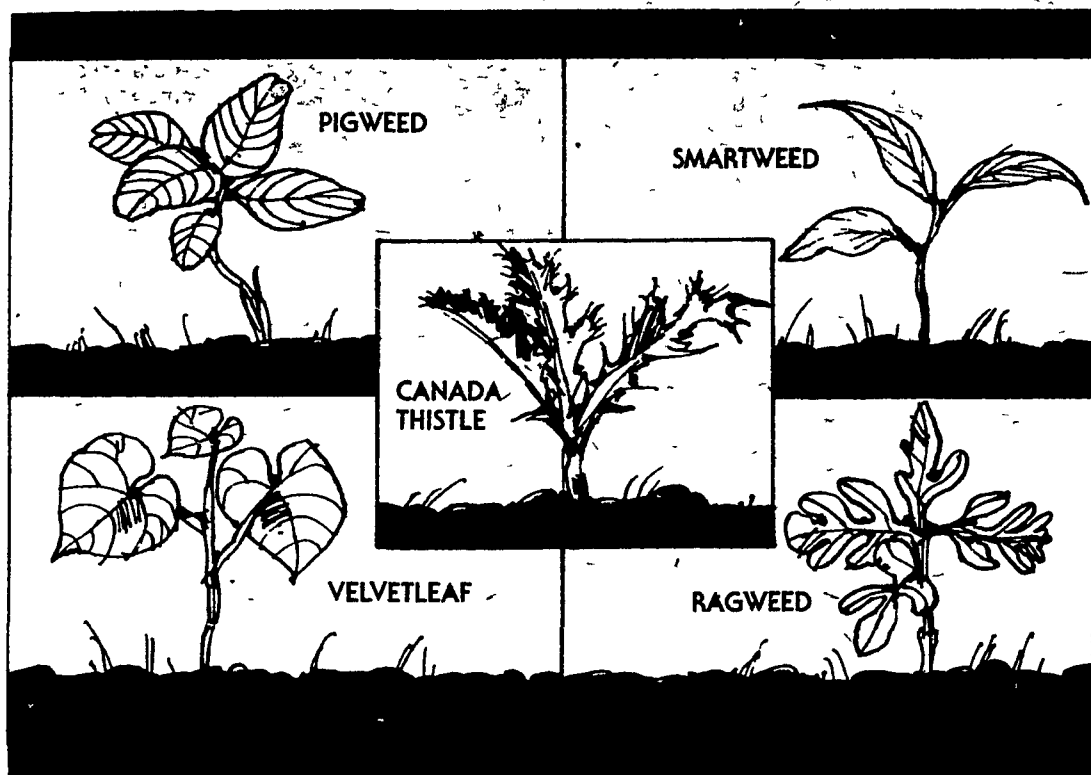

A special source of pride for Wagner are the quality testing results. On several occasions raw milk from WSH has been cleaner than processed milk picked off the shelf in Reading supermarkets. Wagner takes this as another sign that things are being done right.

Supplying milk for their own use as well as for state institutions at Hamburg, the WSH dairy is operated in line with demand for its products. Wagner therefore keeps careful tabs on consumption as well as production. Most of the milk is pasteurized, homogenized, and containerized right on the farm. Some is turned into cheese at a commercial firm. Cows are taken in or out of the herd as is necessary to meet the demand for milk. Surplus milk is usually transferred to other institutions where milk is short.

Vegetable harvest record set

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland farmers harvested more acreage of commercial vegetables in 1975 than in the previous year. Last year's total reached 53,180 acres, as compared with 52,070 for 1974. Vegetable production statistics for this year are not yet available.

The Md.-Del. Crop

Reporting Service of USDA and the Maryland Department of Agriculture report that Caroline led all other counties with 7,355 acres harvested. Queen Anne followed with 7,250. Next was Kent with 5,305. Crops in those counties went primarily for processing.

Wicomico led in terms of acreage (2,950) for fresh market, with Baltimore County (1,940) in second place and Dorchester (1,130) third.

The leading vegetable crop statewide was sweet corn. The 14,500 acres harvested represented a .03 per cent increase over 1974 acreage. Tomato acreage reached a total of 6,700 acres - a more than .16 per cent jump over the previous year. Acreage in peas (5,700), however, was slightly under the 1974 figure.

There was also a slight decline in the cumulative acreage for asparagus, cucumbers, spinach, lima and snap beans.

Most counties on the westward side of the Chesapeake Bay had increases in harvested acres. Allegany, for instance rose from 130 in 1974 to 930 acres in the past year, while Montgomery went from 90 to 790 acres. Most of the acreage in this sector of the state was harvested for processing.

Commenting on the upward trend, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Young D. Hance said that, "it demonstrates that farmers respond to the demands of the demands of the market place. They are usually ready and willing to expand production if there is a reasonable chance for realizing a fair profit on their investment."

He added that Maryland still has the capability to increase acreage for various crops, but stressed that commercial, industrial and residential development poses a threat to the future of farming in most parts of Maryland.

Kirby wins rodeo riding events

WOODSTOWN, N.J. — Members of the R. J. Reynolds Co., the news media, and a few die hard rodeo fans sat through steady rain for the opening of the 22nd consecutive Cowntown Rodeo on a recent Saturday night.

Competition was limited to threetop winners for the six events, with Kaye Kirby of Woodstown, N.J. taking first in the riding events and Bud Bramwell of Stamford, Conn. first in the timed events.

In spite of towel drying the backs of the Brahma Bulls and throwing jackets over their bull ropes to keep them dry only eight cowboys showed on the eight seconds required to qualify in the bull riding. Kaye Kirby took the lead by more than 20 points with a mark of 81. Kaye also won the Bare Back Bronc Riding with a mark of 72 and the Saddle Bronc event with a 61, taking home a total of $507.64 for the three events.

Bud Bramwell was top money winner of the evening, with $568.40. Bud held on to the slippery horns of his steer to throw it in a brief 5.6 seconds. The calf roping took a little longer at 13.6 seconds, pushing Ray Youngster of Lionsville, N.J. into second place by less than two seconds.

The Girl's Clover Leaf Barrel Race was run in 18.10 seconds by Lorraine Alexander of Newton, N.J. just seven-hundredths of a second faster than runner-up Dale Bibbo.

It takes more than Spring rain and mud to dampen the spirits of a rodeo competitor. There were 110 contestants, competing for $3,283.00 in prize money at the May 29 performance.

New 4-H club formed

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Hamsters, guinea pigs and cavy will be the subject of a new 4-H Small Animals Club that will start soon in Hunterdon County, New Jersey. Mrs. Judith Mitchell of Bethlehem Township will be the leader of this new club, which will conduct its initial meeting on Thursday, June 17 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Round Valley Youth Center, off the Lebanon Stanton Road in Clinton Township.

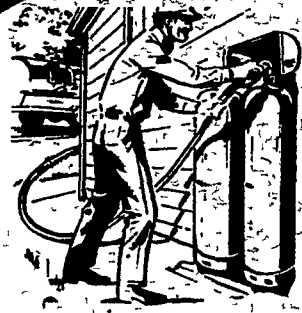

For many years now, there have been several 4-H clubs dealing with rabbits and poultry, but nothing has been available specifically for those young people who enjoy raising smaller animals. With the start of this new Small Animals Project, youngsters, ages 10-19, will be able to study the care and feeding of these very common housepets.

More information on the club can be obtained by calling Mrs. Mitchell at 201-537-2805.

MANHEIM, PAPHONE 665-2258
HOME 665-3603Tax-free earnings allowed

New Internal Revenue Service rulings allow a student or other summer employee to earn up to $2350 before paying income taxes. An employee does not have to file a return unless he earns more than this amount or has more than $750 unearned income (dividends, etc.), says Carl German, University of Delaware extension marketing specialist.

If a teenager expects to earn less than this figure, he certifies to his employer when hired that he expects to avoid a federal income tax liability for the current year and had none for the preceding year. He then must file a W-4E form that certifies that there is to be no tax deduction by the employer.

If any time after this form is filed the employee does earn more than $2,350, then a regular tax withholding form may be filed and standard deductions will begin.

If he chooses, German says, a teenager may have the standard tax deduction made at the time he's hired. This money will be returned when he files for a tax refund after January 1. Some prefer to use this practice as a way of saving about 15 percent of their summer earnings for use at a later time.

Although he won't have the federal tax taken from his pay, other deductions, such as social security and state tax, will remain the same.

The role of parents remains the same in spite of these tax-rule changes. A child may be claimed as a dependent as long as he is under 19 or a full-time student and provides less than half of his support.

For parents acting as employers, all payments for work should be made by check and not in the form of free gasoline and use of the car, a calf, a field to grow a crop or a broiler house. German says that unless a separate tax report is filed, sometimes the income and expenses of the teenager are difficult to separate from those of the parents.

Take the lid off your milk production

It takes more than just a protein number to supplement your silage or hay - unless you want your feed to keep milk production as much as 20% under what it could be. Nutritional shortages can prevent your cows from ever milking up to their bred-in potential.

Now there's a proven way out. Whether your milk production level is 12,000, 15,000 or even 19,000 lbs. per cow, you can expect Wayne Maximizer™ nutrition to boost production as much as 20%. It has taken the lid off milk production in herds just like yours.

Hay or pasture can't go it alone. Wayne Front Runner Horse Krunch is the total balancer, high in taste appeal. This feed adds the extra energy that your horses don't get from hay or pasture alone. It's a clean, easy-to-handle feed. The grains are crimped or cracked.

Front Runner furnishes ample vitamins, minerals and protein. Pure cane molasses provide flavor that horses love.

Maximizer assures a balance of six nutritional factors - protein, energy, fiber, calcium, phosphorus and magnesium.

It starts with your roughage - having analyzed so you know what it provides and what it lacks. Then you look at your herd and its current production... and at the new production level you want.

Next, your Wayne Feed representative goes to the Wayne line of dairy supplements - from the Dari-Blens to the complete Wayne dairy feeds, whichever fit your situation - to build the required nutritional balance and level to take the lid off your milk production.

Alternatives discussed

YORK - Representing York County at the recent PFA Dairy Meeting were Charles Rauhauser, committee chairman, Tom Boyer, Robert Stewart and Wayne Beshore along with Regional Director Dave Muzzy.

Since the Federal Orders for milk run out in five years, dairymen are being urged to begin work on milk supply management policy. Rauhauser invites all dairy committeemen and other interested PFA members to attend a special meeting to discuss alternatives during the June 21 Board meeting at Warner's Dairyland, 8 p.m.

Dairy princess knows much about milk

Carol Yeager - 1976 Chester County Dairy Princess

By DIETER KRIEG

ELVERSON—Sixteen-year old Carol Yeager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Yeager, Phoenixville R2, was crowned Chester County Dairy Princess here a week ago before an estimated crowd of 70 people.

An imaginative and lively blonde, Miss Yeager competed for the title for many of the same reasons listed by other girls. She believes the story of milk and dairy farming should be told far and wide and wants to do her part in broadcasting the message. Naturally, she's a milk drinker herself, something which her healthy look confirms.

Miss Yeager, who will be a senior at Phoenixville Area High School this Fall, competed for the honor against four other Chester County girls - all of whom presented commendable credentials for the contest. Runner-up in the program, held here at the Fire Hall, was 17-year old Beverly Ann Hershey, a pretty brunette from Cochranville R1. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hershey, Beverly will reign over Chester County's dairy industry during Carol's absence. Her family has over 100 head of Holsteins, with which the young lady is quite familiar in addition to being an honor student at Octorara Area High School.

Completing the slate of contestants for this year's dairy princess contest were:

Debra Ann Bruner, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bruner Glen Moore R1. She owns 10 Holsteins and works as a secretary for a trucking firm.

Sharon Lynn Henley, 17, the 1976 National Ayrshire Girl. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennard E. Henley, Jr., Cochranville R1. Catherine E. Wollastone, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Wollaston, Toughkenamon, is known for her enthusiasm for Jersey cattle, and has 19 cows of her own.

Meet the Princess

Miss Yeager is possibly just a little more familiar with milk than most dairymen. She's not only experienced in working with milk in the barn, milkhouse, and kitchen - she can recite a rather complete chemical analysis of the nutritious product. She knows what's in milk and why it's good for people who drink it. Furthermore, she knows quite a bit about how it's produced by the cow and what roll the dairymen plays in "harvesting" it.

During the contest on June 4, Miss Yeager was asked to tell and demonstrate how to milk a cow by hand. To make it a little more challenging, she was asked to pretend that the audience was filled with city slickers. Delighting everyone in the hall with her imaginative, witty, and accurate skit, the 1976 Chester County Dairy Princess displayed some of the talents which she will probably have to call upon during the next 12 months.

Aside from her interests in the outdoors, biology, and chemistry, Miss Yeager is also very active in sports. She is a member of the Girls' Varsity Club, and her school's hockey and lacrosse teams. Academically she has also excelled and is a member of the National Honor Society.

The young lady is treasurer of the Tri-Community 4-H Club and a member of the 4-H Dairy Club. Last year she was on the dairy judging team. Her family owns 45 Holsteins. She belongs to the East Vincent United Church of Christ.

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE SYSTEM

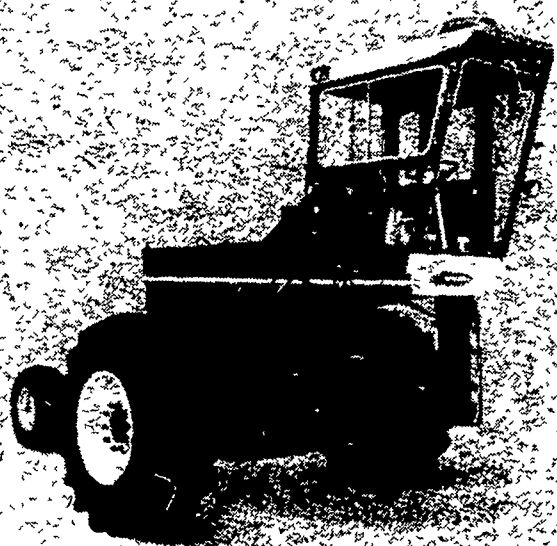

If you want to save money in equipment costs, you can't beat the system — Uni-System, that is.

With Uni, you have the capability of converting a single power source into a versatile farming system. The variety of harvesting units available can be interchanged to turn Uni into a combine that'll harvest 4 rows of corn, 6 rows of beans, as well as small grain; or a cornpicker that'll pick and husk 4 rows of corn, self-propelled (great for seed corn, too); or a cage-type corn sheller that delivers clean kernels, with less damage; or a rugged, big capacity forage harvester that'll chop corn or hay. You can even extend your investment in Uni by using it as a planter/tool carrier in the spring. That's interchangeability that just can't be beat!

It all starts with the Uni Power Units that are engineered and built tough, from the frame up. Designed in a way that makes Uni meet or beat any other self-propelled farm equipment on the market, when it comes to uniting power, versatility, safety, and convenience.

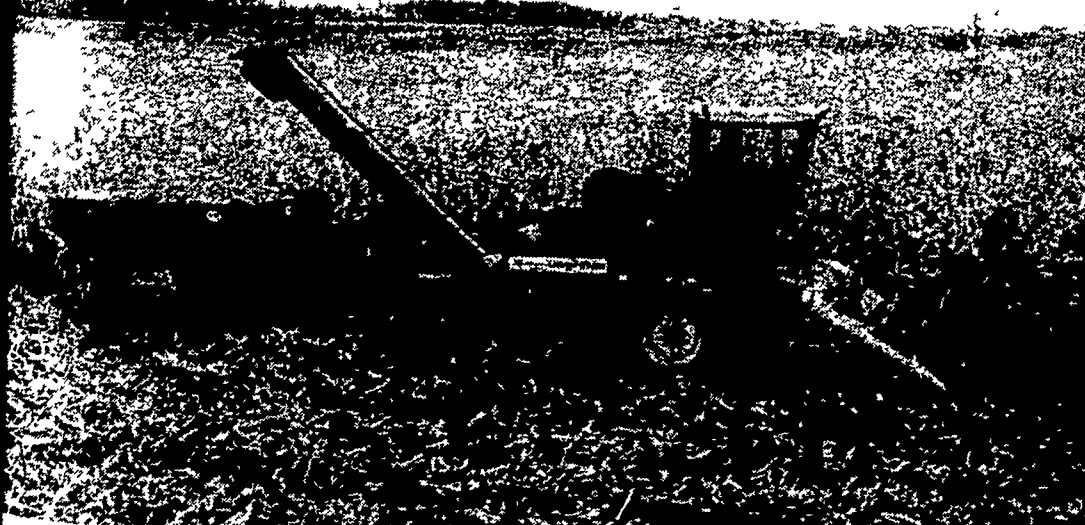

New Idea's whole idea with the Uni-System is to improve your performance by reducing your farm machinery costs. Think of it! Just one power source that can do so much of your work season after season — just one Power Unit, not several. Take a look at Uni and see how many jobs it can handle in your operation.

See, also, the extra strength that's built-in for long life and minimum maintenance. We designed Uni with you in mind — that's why we say, "You can't beat the system!"

Miss Neel has worked for the Lancaster ASCS office for nearly 38 years and will be retiring at the end of this month.

Dorothy Neel retiring

LANCASTER - Dorothy Neel, Lancaster County's Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, is retiring at the end of this month.

During the past nearly 38 years, Miss. Neel has gotten to know just about every farm and farmer in Lancaster County. Beginning her long career in October of 1938, she has found her work to be "very enjoyable and quite interesting." Her first responsibilities included measuring farm lands on aerial photographs. As executive director she's been in charge of all programs - "under the supervision of the County Commissioners, of course," she added.

The main reason why Miss Neel is retiring now, rather than after a full 38 years of service is that she believes she'll have an easier time of making the adjustment during the summer rather than winter. She plans on doing some travelling.

Help offered to grain farmers

LANCASTER - Farmers are reminded of the disaster provisions of the 1976 wheat and feed grain program.

Any farmer with a wheat or feed grain allotment is eligible to file application, if he has suffered a crop loss because of natural disaster or causes beyond his control.

The loss must be reported to the ASCS office while evidence of the crop is still apparent, but not later than 15 days from the date of harvest. If the crop is damaged, and will be harvested for other than grain, it must be inspected and appraised prior to such use.

Acceptable production evidence must be submitted for commercial storage or other disposition. Farm stored grain will be measured.

Each farm is considered separately for disaster claims, and production from two or more farms should not be co-mingled.

Eligibility is determined on the basis of the disaster allotment times the established adjusted yield, times the crop factor for the county.

Our Goal is to make work as much fun as play

Charcoal fires can be dangerous

SCHUYLKILL COUNTY - For cooking can be a lot of fun, but accidents do happen and frequently young people are the victims. Charcoal is a favorite fuel for outdoor cooking, but it must be handled carefully. Accidents show that many cooking accidents are from the careless use of charcoal.

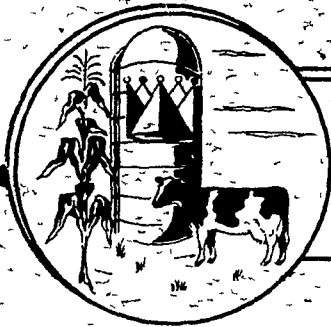

Sullivan, community development director for the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Service, cautions that the innocent-looking gray ash on a chunk of charcoal hides a very hot fire. Any piece showing even a tiny fleck of gray ash can produce a serious burn. Before starting a fire, make sure your grill is sturdy and set firmly on the ground so that it will not tip or spill. Keep children and pets away from grills and do not permit small children to help build fires or extinguish them.

Using additional starter or lighter fluid on a fire that is already burning is dangerous. Flare-ups from this practice have caused many serious accidents, says Sullivan. Use only approved starter fluids. Gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, and lighter fluid are dangerous and should not be used. Make sure your fire is dead before you leave picnic grounds or similar areas. Soak the area beneath the grill or the fire with water. Many children have been seriously burned by running through hot ashes or stepping on the hot ground left under a fire or portable grill, warns Sullivan.

AGRI-KING

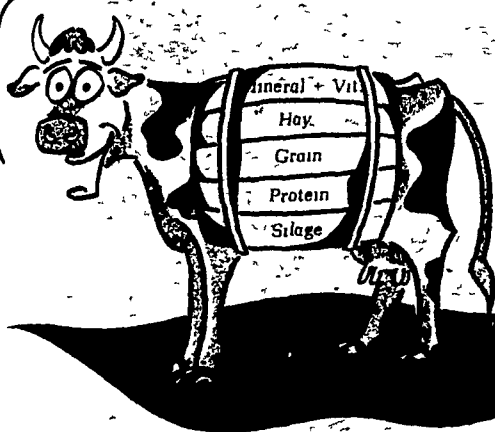

KEY TO PROFIT

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH — DON'T FORGET TO TAKE CARE OF THE QUEEN OF THE MONTH.

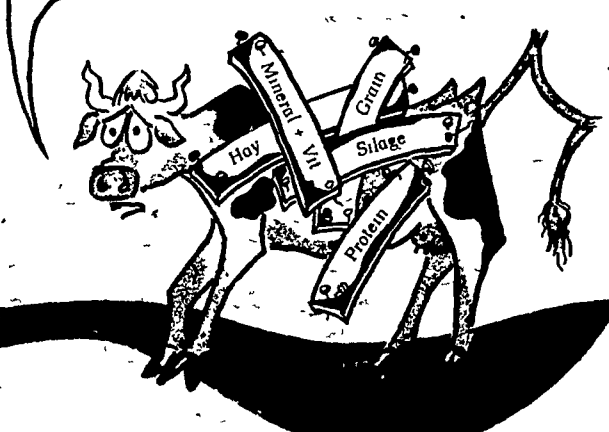

She is a factory not a mine. What you take out - you have to put back or you will lose the Queen.

Today we want cows to average 14,000 - 25,000 lbs. of milk per year. Twenty-five years ago we were happy with cows that averaged 7,000 - 12,000 lbs. per year. So we can no longer take care of the queen like grandfather did because we are taking twice as much away from her as he did. Therefore it's very important what and how much we put into her because the barrel is only so big and we've got to know what's going into that barrel.

Feed the Agri-King Way

Don't Guess

Feed is Money... Don't Throw it Away!

By feed testing and ration formulation we can help you utilize the full potential of your crops and of your herds bred in ability...

If you over feed protein, you may as well feed her nails, you'll ruin her health either way!

Bull evaluation entries due

HARRISBURG - Entries are now being accepted for the 1976-77 Winter Bull Test at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

Robert L. Kimble, director of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, said the deadline for entries is August 15, 1976.

The Bull Performance Test is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Dairy and Animal Science Department of Penn State University in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and the state breed associations.

First choice in entries are given to purebred bulls from Pennsylvania producers. Second choice is given to percentage bulls from Pennsylvania producers. Then, if all pen space is not taken by August 15, 1976, bulls from other states will be accepted.

In order for bulls to be eligible, they must have been born between October 1, 1975, and April 15, 1976. Depending on the breed, they must have an adjusted 205 day weight of either 475 pounds or 525 pounds, a 205 day weight ratio of 100 or more, and a type score of at least 12.

Performance testing helps to identify those sires that are genetically superior for various traits. In addition to growth, these bulls can also be measured for fat thickness and loin-eye area by the use of the sanogram, which gives an idea of meatiness and composition of gain.

Any person interested in obtaining information in order to put a bull on test should contact the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pa. 16802 or phone (814) 238-2527.

Corn contest slated

GETTYSBURG - Adams County farmers wishing to enter the Five-Acre Corn Club, sponsored by the Pennsylvania State University Agricultural Extension Service and the Pennsylvania Masters Corn Growers Association, should file an official entry form at the Adams County Agricultural Extension Office by July 1.

Any farmer or farm operator who is 18 years of age or older by August 1, 1976, is eligible to enroll. There is no charge for entering the Corn Club, says John Schwartz, Adams County agricultural agent. One entry is allowed per farmer, or farm operator - if more than one farm is involved.

A field of five acres on which a complete Pennsylvania State University soil test has been taken within the last two years is eligible for entry. If the corn is grown in contour strips, two to three strips on the same slope may be used as long as the combined acreage is not less than five acres.

The entire acreage must be planted to one variety corn, and irrigated fields cannot be entered.

There are two harvest classes - one for ear corn and one for shelled grain.

Those wishing to enter this contest may secure forms by contacting the Adams County Cooperative Extension Service.

Crafts are popular: even in 4-H

By JOANNE SPAHR
- CONESTOGA -
As everyone knows, crafts are the "big thing" nowadays. What used to be considered a waste of valuable time is now thought of as a beautiful way to use your talents in a creative form of self-expression. Plus, it's a lucrative way to relax. More and more women and men are learning macrame, embroidery, knitting, woodworking, ceramics, and leather crafting to name just a few basics.

Putting this knowledge into action, the Penn Willow 4-H Club of Conestoga, who exhibited their crafts in the Conestoga Community Bicentennial Craft Fair, last weekend, is adding a crafts group to their many varied projects within the club this year. Penn Willow is a community club directed by Mrs. Joan Huber and Ronald Walton which average 60-100 members and has projects in rabbits, vegetables, capons, cooking, flowers, biking, and sewing. This will be the first year for crafts.

"Actually, we did have crafts last year, but it was really just a way to keep the extra girls occupied when all the sewing machines were in use," says Mrs. Kathy Bucher, the soft-spoken, petite leader of the crafts group. She went on to explain from behind her stand at the crafts fair, that the sewing group had only 12 sewing machines available to it, while there were at least thirty girls taking part in this division of the club. So, when they weren't busy, the girls learned to be "crafty." And, gradually, interest generated to the point that Penn Willow has established a crafts group, which so far has proven to be one of the more popular areas of the club, although there is yet no estimate of how many children will be taking part. It's really not hard to see why there is so much interest in crafts, since many of the accomplished exhibitors at the Conestoga Craft Fair were the leaders of the club. For instance, Dawn Reish, a sewing instructor who lives at Conestoga R2, was hooking intricately designed rugs fashioned after the manner of her grandmother's made with pieces of material. Mrs. Reish has been involved with 4-H for five years.

Kathy Huber had her own

Mrs. Kathy Bucher, leader of this year's crafts group of the Penn Willow 4-H Club had a stand of her own at the Conestoga Community Bicentennial Craft Fair where she displayed trapunta, quilting, and other types of hand work. Here, she shows a machine-applied pillow.

stand where she exhibited her hand work. Among her exhibit were beautiful machine-embroidered pillows, quilted materials, and trapunta. Trapunta is an art in which two thin layers of material are quilted together with the bottom layer very sheer. This sheer, bottom layer is punctured after quilting and stuffed with batting, creating a highly sculptured look. Trapunta can be used in various forms from parts of quilts to wall hangings.

Kathy also exhibited clothspin dolls, a craft she intends to teach her 4-Hers.

A former art teacher for what used to be Lancaster Township. Who now lives at Conestoga R1, Kathy is relatively new to 4-H. Last year was her first encounter with the organization, and this year she will have her first craft group. Her assistant, June Furlow, was also an art teacher, and demonstrated spinning and weaving at the craft fair.

Some of the projects the children will be learning in crafts this year are bottle art, God's eye, animal cracker pins, burlap weaving, and papier-mache flower pins.

For all interested craft enthusiasts, Kathy has given directions to some of her favorite crafts which she will be teaching her 4-Hers.

Animal Cracker Pins

This is a very simple craft which Kathy says turns out "just darling." All you do is take an animal cracker and paint it with magic markers, and then spray with modge podge. Try it, they make cute little surprise gifts.

Papier-mache Flower Pins

This craft is for all of you who still use papier-mache egg cartons, or now use styrofoam cartons and have unused cartons of the papier-mache.

Take the egg carton lid and cut out a flower shape. Then, hold the cutout under water until it is soaked - for about 30 seconds. When it's soft enough to mold, make the petal 3-D by bending it upward. Then let dry. After it has dried, paint both sides with white glue. Then, paint the flower with tempera paint and let dry. After this has dried, spray it with colorless acrylic spray. For extra luster, coat it with colorless nail polish or modge podge.

Bottle and Tape Craft

This craft is another very simple way to create attractive flower vases or center pieces. It's also a great way to utilize empty, useless bottles.

For this craft, take a bottle of any shape and wash and dry it. Then tear off little pieces of masking tape and cover the bottle with them. The trick is to overlap the pieces to make an interesting design. When the whole bottle is covered, apply about two coats of shoe polish. The bottles become interesting pieces of art with the look of leather.

Pomona Grange sponsors bicentennial event

By JUDY MITCHELL

Berks Co. Reporter

KUTZTOWN — The Berks County Pomona Grange sponsored a Bicentennial Day celebration which began with an 11 a.m. flag raising ceremony at the Fairgrounds here on May 29. Approximately 500 persons attended the event which was open to the public and continued into the evening hours with a variety of activities.

Old-fashioned family fun was provided with games of schtup bolla, tug-o-war, horseshoes, and a small tractor pull contest which proved to be one of the more popular events of the day.

There were 24 entries in the tractor pull competition which continued in spite of heavy rains. First place winners in each of four categories were awarded Bicentennial trophies, and second and third place winners received eight and five dollar money prizes, respectively.

In the eight h.p. class, Charles Levan of Oley R1 took first place, pulling the skid 61 feet with an Allis Chalmers tractor; followed by George W. Schlegel, Oley R1, on a Wheel Horse with a distance of 52 feet; and Arlan Bieber, Oley R1, who also drove a Wheel Horse, with a distance of 46 feet, 8½ inches.

Henry Schlegel, Oley R1, driving an International Harvester, took the top spot in the 10 h.p. class with a distance of 66' 3"; Arlan Bieber came in second on a Wheel Horse with a distance of 65'; followed by George Schlegel, also on a Wheel Horse, with 62' 2".

In the 12 h.p. class, Larry Angstadt, Oley R1, measured the longest distance of 78' 2½" with a Wheel Horse; Terry Hartman, Mertztown R2, followed with 77' 9½" on a Gravely; and William Smith, Mertztown R2, also on a Gravely, came in third with 77' 1½".

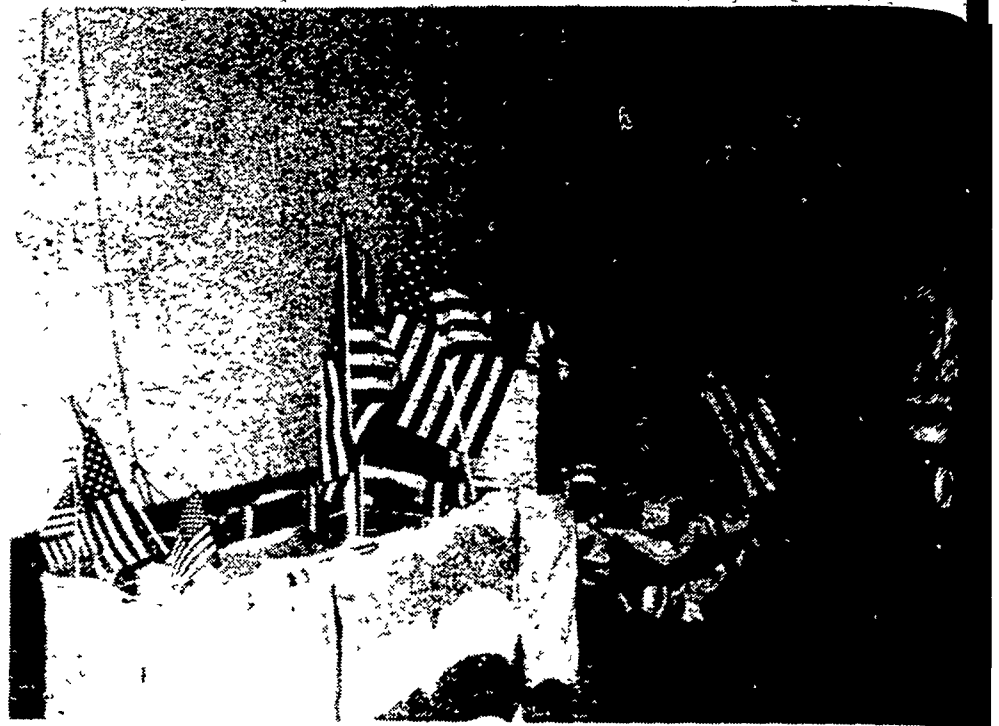

Terry Hartman took the trophy in the 14 h.p. class pulling the skid 81' with a Gravely; Charles Levan, Oley R1, came in second on an Allis Chalmers with 79' 3"; followed by Larry Angstadt on a Wheel Horse with 76'.

Following the class competition, there was a free-for-all pull won by Arlan Bieber who was awarded a scale tractor courtesy of Norman Flicker of Flicker and Sons. Flicker also donated a scale tractor for the powder puff winner, Mrs. Charles Levan.

Another popular event was the children's Bicentennial parade. The youngsters appeared in a variety of colonial costumes with floats designed around toys with three or more wheels. The parade was held indoors because of the rain, but that did not dampen the young peoples' spirit and all entrants were winners, each being presented with a silver dollar.

The Pomona Chorus was on hand to sing for the gathering at the fairground pavilion, and additional entertainment included a Bicentennial film produced by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Blatt of Leesport, R1, entitled "Beginning in Berks;" square dancing for the public; and a historical pageant presented under the direction of Milton Blatt of Leesport.

The children's Bicentennial parade was one of the highlights of the Berks Co. Pomona Grange Bicentennial celebration. The floats were designed around toys with three or more wheels.

Food by United Methodist Women

Farm output nearly doubled in 10 years

By Congressman Edwin D. Eshleman
16th District — Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The importance of agriculture to the economy of the 16th Congressional District is well-known. However, across our country many people have lost sight of how important farming and the agricultural community are to our national economy. The Department of Agriculture recently published a fact book which should help remind all Americans just how dependent we are on our farmers.

According to the Department of Agriculture, agriculture is the nation's biggest industry. Between 14 and 17 million people are employed in some phase of agriculture — from growing food and fiber to selling it in the supermarkets. Actual farm work itself employs 4.4 million workers, which is as many as the combined payrolls of the steel, automobile and transportation industries. Interestingly, one in every five jobs in private enterprise is directly related to our farms and farm products.

The agriculture fact book states that farmers today produce 53 per cent more crops on six per cent fewer acres than did their fathers. One farmworker now supplies enough food and fiber for 56 people. Only ten years ago a farmer produced enough for 29 people. Farmers produce not only enough for us, but enough to sell large quantities overseas. In 1974, farm exports totaled $22 billion.

Farmers are consumers and taxpayers as well as producers. Farmers pay $2.9 billion in real estate taxes, $427 million in personal property taxes, $4.3 billion in Federal and State income taxes and about $500 million in sales taxes.

Farmers spend about $73 billion for goods and services to produce crops and livestock. Farmers' purchases include: $8.8 billion for tractors and other machinery; $10.1 billion for fuel and maintenance of farm machinery; $17 billion for feed and seeds and $5.6 billion for fertilizer. Approximately 33 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity are used on our farms and 6½ million tons of steel are used in farm machinery, tools, building materials and other agriculture items. Farm use of steel accounts for 40,000 jobs in the steel industry.

While farming continues to make great contributions to our economy, the total number of farms is declining. Most of this loss has been caused by urbanization and highway construction. This is unfortunate particularly because it appears that it is the family farm that is disappearing most rapidly. Only 48 per cent of our productive farmland is owned and worked by families or small farmers.

I hope this trend can be reversed. Changes in our tax laws and other reforms should be implemented to assist the small farmer. It is clear that agriculture is vital to the well being of our national economy and I believe the small, family farm is the backbone of U.S. agriculture.
